NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

Passage of the French Spoliation Bill in the Senate.

Chances for an Extra Session—The Cuban Question—Cause of the Recall of Lord Napier—Senator Douglas' Reception in the Senate—The Mexican News, &c.

Special dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 10.

The chances for an extra session of Congress are now seriously calculated in high quarters.

The articles in foreign papers touching the views of England and France have excited a lively interest here. Mr. BARKSDALE'S call for correspondence is designed to ascertain if our Government has been notified of these views as alleged by the Paris Presse.

The recall of Lord NAPIER is now attributed, in the best-informed circles, to French influence. The French Emperor regards this country with distrust and dislike, and watches with interest every indication of a growing friendliness of feeling between us and England. So far as political influences are concerned, he is perfectly aware that England and the United States have far more in common than England and France. His Minister here has long seen that Lord NAPIER had done more, by far, than any other British Minister has ever done, to render an English alliance popular in this country; and he has been correspondingly anxious for his withdrawal. This he has at last accomplished. Lord NAPIER'S successor is a diplomatist of the red-tape school.

The decision of the Navy Department in awarding the contracts for the machinery for sloop No. 2, at Philadelphia, is likely to create a difficulty here. Protests will be entered, complaining of unfairness on the part of the Government.

Senator DOUGLAS resumed his seat in the Senate to-day. His reception was studiously cold—few Senators approaching to welcome his return. There was a slight attempt at applause in the gallery, but it was promptly checked.

The latest news from Mexico is considered indicative of the early and firm establishment of the Liberal Government. The fact that ROBLES has sent Commissioners to treat with JUAREZ is a confession that he has no hope of maintaining his own supremacy. Those here best acquainted with Mexican affairs suppose that ROBLES' purpose is to endeavor to make terms for a final submission to JUAREZ, that shall save a confiscation of the Church property. Certainly the Liberals, who have outlived ZULOAGA'S administration, will not yield now to the legatee of his ruined fortunes. It is safe to predict that in a few days we shall receive news of the undisputed establishment of the JUAREZ Government at the Capital. ROBLES may be returned here as Minister, but whoever comes will be prepared to make an early and favorable treaty. Another fortnight will clear up the mist now enveloping our Mexican relations, in all probability.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 10.

Some misunderstanding appearing to exist in respect to the telegraphic outline of Mr. TRUMBULL'S speech on the Pacific Railroad, it may be stated that the Senator advocated the construction of a road central, or nearly central to the population and business of the country, and for that purpose wanted Congress to limit it within certain parallels of latitude. With reference to his allusion to the Whig Party, his remarks sought to show that modern Democracy was supported alike by persons who had formerly been Whigs and Democrats, while Republicanism in the same manner was sustained by persons from both the former parties. He assumed that both the present parties were new organizations, formed in 1854 on the Slavery issue; that modern Democracy was as much a new organization as the Republican Party; and that, in taking issue on the Slavery question, now the only test of party fealty, both parties are made up indiscriminately, without regard to former political associations.

Mr. PHELPS of Missouri made an ineffectual effort to-day to have evening sessions in the House for two weeks, for general speech-making, his object being to confine the debates in the earlier part of the day to legitimate business.

Intelligence has just been received from Jefferson City, that the Constitutional amendment, limiting the Missouri State debt to thirty millions of dollars, will not probably be adopted, but that it is more likely the Legislature will grant some five millions additional aid to the railroads, by the further issue of State bonds.

A Central National Club was organized here to-day, the object of which is to present JOHN MINOR BOTTS as the opposition candidate for the Presidency.

Mr. BILLINGHURST has given notice in the House of his intention to introduce a bill to abolish the office of First Comptroller, thus devolving its duties upon some other officer of the Treasury.

The Mobile Register, of Saturday, announces the death of Mr. CHARLES FISHER, the New-Orleans Picayune's first private correspondent. He was a very popular and pleasing writer.

All the Western mails due here have been received.

Mr. D. B. BYRON, Assistant Operator in the office of the Magnetic Telegraph Company in this City, died this morning after a brief illness. Mr. BYRON was a young man of fine attainments; skillful and correct in his profession, and highly esteemed by his brother operators on the Line. His death will be deeply lamented by his numerous friends and acquaintances.

SENATOR TRUMBULL IN REPLY TO SENATOR IVERSON—THE CORRESPONDENCE RELATIVE TO THE SLAVE-TRADE, &C.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Jan. 8, 1859.

Senator TRUMBULL yesterday appropriately answered the disunion speech of Mr. IVERSON, made the day before, exposing its absurdities, and the utter fallacy of the claim put forth by the Southern men to the effect that the rights of the South are invaded if Slavery is not permitted to go into the Territories of the Union. The exclusion of Slavery he argued did not involve discrimination in favor of one section of the Union against the other. The discrimination was in favor of a system of labor merely, and was in no sense to be regarded as affecting political rights. In the Slave-States there were only 350,000 slaveholders against 5,500,000 of non-slaveholders. Suppose a non-slaveholder goes from Georgia in a Territory—asked Mr. TRUMBULL—has he not as much right to say that Slavery shall not come there, as the Georgia slaveholder has to take his property there? What nonsense was it to insist that the 5,500,000 of non-slaveholders in the South, and the 13,000,000 of freemen in the North had nothing to say in regard to the system of labor to be established in the Territories,—no voice in the settlement of a question which so materially affects the material interests of each and all of them, even laying out of view the moral aspect of the subject.

The Senator also revived Mr. WEBSTER'S argument denying that the Constitution extends to the Territories of the United States. That instrument was a compact between States, not Territories. This proposition he maintained was admitted in the Kansas-Nebraska bill by the insertion of a clause expressly extending the Constitution to the Territories created thereby. So, too, Judges in the Territories are appointed for a term of years, whereas, if the Constitution extended itself to Kansas, the Judges under it would necessarily be appointed during good behavior. Taking this view of the case, Mr. T. scouted the idea that Slavery is carried to the Territories by the Constitution at all, and especially that it is maintained there by force of that instrument until excluded by State enactment. Finally, he ridiculed, with much power and excellent effect, Mr. IVERSON'S determination to go out of the Union unless 350,000 slaveholders are permitted to rule it in utter disregard of the sentiments and interests of all the rest.

When the answer comes in to Mr. SEWARD'S resolution, calling for the recent correspondence with Great Britain relative to the African Slave-trade, we may expect a practical debate upon this important and interesting subject. The phraseology of the resolution indicates the probability that England has called the attention of our Government to the case of the Wanderer, and perhaps we may get some facts through this medium throwing needed light on the late mysterious "pleasure cruise" of Captain CORRIE and company on the coast of Africa. Meantime there is no reason now to doubt the fact that the Wanderer did bring in and land on the coast of Georgia a cargo of Africans; and the boldness of the act, together with the apparent difficulty of obtaining any proof sufficient to convict those engaged in this felonious enterprise, excites alarming apprehension lest the Slave-trade, already reopened, may be prosecuted with so much zeal and success as to set at defiance public sentiment in both sections of the Union, and bankrupt the South itself, by greatly reducing the value of its slave property. Southern men themselves begin to foresee these disastrous results, and will be compelled at no distant day to exert themselves in good faith to secure means for the absolute suppression of the infamous traffic.

Experience teaches that the present arrangements to that end are totally inadequate. If a slaver once gets clear of the African Coast with her freight of human wretchedness, she is comparatively safe; and that she has little trouble in evading the preventive squadron as at present organized, the evidence is abundant in the numbers of Africans landed every year on the Cuban coast.

The only means which give reasonable promise of adequacy consist chiefly in supplying a fleet of small steamers, of light draft, capable of running into the shallowest rivers and bays, frequented by slavers, and of chasing them with speed even in a dead calm. If England and the United States should unite in an effort of this kind, they would soon involve the Slave-trade in too serious risks to be profitable. Some years ago the TIMES published a highly interesting dispatch upon this subject, sent home by the Hon. ROBERT C. SCHENCK while United States Minister to Brazil—a dispatch full of valuable suggestions upon the subject, which might be read again at this time with decided advantage.

The House Committee on Foreign Relations have not considered the several important questions of foreign policy presented in the President's annual message, because the documents are not yet before them. It is now a month since the message and documents were ordered to be printed, and no sign of their appearance is yet before us, although the first half of this brief session is rapidly waning. Members are beginning to complain, and justly, of the Public Printer for his dilatoriness. Congress should devise some better means than now exist, for the speedy and economical execution of this sort of work. What has become of the Hon. Mr. TAYLOR'S printed reform bill? Is it to be smothered and forgotten? S.

THE ADMINISTRATION AND THE KANSAS TROUBLES—THE CORMICK AND RAMSEY CLAIMS—THE PROPOSED PERSIAN MISSION.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Jan. 9, 1859.

The Administration is evidently alarmed at the threatening aspect of affairs in Kansas, growing out of the lawless movements of MONTGOMERY and BROWN and their associates. The special messenger, who arrived here yesterday from the scene of disturbance, brought intelligence of a character making an immediate meeting of the Cabinet indispensable. The impression prevails that the act of Missouri in providing means for sending volunteers across the border to meet and crush the Montgomery men in Kansas, will bring out large numbers of the people of Kansas to the aid of the latter, and thus precipitate a civil war, unless instant and effective measures are adopted to stay the tide of invasion from Missouri.

MONTGOMERY and BROWN, lawless though their present course appears to be, have had much provocation, and the people of Kansas very generally sympathize with them in greater or less degree. BROWN especially has suffered wrongs enough at the hands of Missouri invaders to almost steel his heart against every sentiment of humanity. To avenge the death of his murdered son, and the long list of outrages perpetrated upon him and his, during the Kansas struggle, he considers almost a religious duty; and when Missourians cross the border again, with the avowed purpose of seizing and punishing him, it is reasonable to anticipate that many of those who shared his former trials will rally around him once more, and aid in desperate and bloody resistance. We shall see now whether the Administration will act with sufficient promptitude in suppressing the Missouri irruption, to prevent a serious conflict. However lawless the conduct of MONTGOMERY and BROWN may be, it is not a whit more so than that of the Legislature of Missouri in declaring war against the Territory of Kansas—for that is precisely what they have attempted to do.

The President has given us another specimen of Administrative imbecility, in connection with the case of Messrs. CORMICK and RAMSEY, which occupied the attention of the House of Representatives yesterday. Laying out of view altogether the personal aspects of that case, it is one of vast public importance, involving the question whether our Government is a despotism whenever an Executive officer chooses to make it so,—or whether the will of Congress, deliberately declared by means of legislation, is supreme. The facts are these. Messrs. CORMICK and RAMSEY entered into a contract with the Post-Office Department near the close of Mr. FILLMORE'S Administration which was subsequently abrogated peremptorily by Postmaster-General CAMPBELL. The contractors came to Congress for relief, and after full discussion upon the merits of the case a law was passed authorizing an adjustment of the account and the payment of the damages which the contractors had sustained in consequence of the arbitary act of the Postmaster-General, after they had gone to large expense to make the arrangements necessary to fulfil their contracts. Congress then discussed the contract itself, decided that it had been illegally and unjustly abrogated, and that damages were due in consequence, and accordingly ordered the damages paid. Mr. CAMPBELL, however, interposed, declared that there had been no contract made and refused to allow any damages—planting himself specially upon the declaration that the provision of law authorizing the payment was not mandatory, but was designedly framed so as to leave the Postmaster-General the discretion to withhold payment altogether if he thought proper. The contractors then came again to Congress, and a mandatory provision was passed in August, 1856, in the following terms:

"And be it further enacted, That the First Comptroller of the Treasurybe and he is hereby required to adjust the damages due to HOWARD H. CORMICK and ALBERT C. RAMSEY, on account of the abrogation, by the Postmaster-General, of their contract to carry the mail on the Vera Cruz, Acapulco and San Francisco route, dated the 15th of February, 1853, and adjudged and award to them, according to the principles of law, equity and justice, the amount so found due. And the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby required to pay the same to said CORMICK and RAMSEY, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated."

The late First Comptroller of the Treasury, the Hon. ELISHA WHITTELSEY, whose probity and care in guarding the public money have become a proverb, made a report upon the case, highly favorable to the claimants, and would have executed the law, except for the renewed interference of the Postmaster-General. When the present First Comptroller, Mr. MEDILL, came into power, he at once took his position against the contractors, who, finding that they were not to get any relief at his hands, appealed to Congress again by petition, complaining that their best efforts to get the law executed had failed. The subject was referred to the House Judiciary Committee during the last session of Congress, and said Committee made a unanimous report, in which they recited the act already quoted, and stated that, in their opinion, Congress by said act declared: 1. That a contract with CORMICK and RAMSEY was made; 2. That it was abrogated by the Postmaster-General; 3. That damages are due CORMICK and RAMSEY; 4. The First Comptroller be directed to adjudge and award the amount of said damages; 5. The Secretary of the Treasury is required to pay the same whenever the amount shall be determined. The Committee proceeded to say:

"What more can Congress do? Can they use more pointed words of command to the Comptroller?

The memorialists represent that in 1856 the Postmaster-General succeeded in arresting the execution of the law. Your committee are slow to believe that the Comptroller, an accounting officer designated by Congress for this particular duty, should or could allow of any interference with his duties. In the execution of this law the First Comptroller has no superior. He is independent, not only of the Postmaster-General, but of the Secretary of the Treasury, and even the President himself.

For the purposes of this law he is an officer of Congress, and, pro tanto, independent of all Executive interference. In one point of view only can the President's power be invoked. It is his duty to see that the laws are faithfully executed. If the First Comptroller has refused, or should refuse, to carry out this law, the President, knowing it, should cause him to be removed and a person appointed who would obey the law.

Congress has taken its share of responsibility in declaring that a contract existed, was abrogated, and that damages are due. Whether it has wisely or unwisely met and discharged that responsibility is not a question that can be reviewed now by the First Comptroller, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Postmaster-General, or the President. That is a closed question. The President has approved the law.

In the opinion of your Committee, it is the duty of the First Comptroller to execute the existing law."

Still in the face of this report, MEDILL has persisted in declaring that Congress didn't know what it was about when it passed the law in question, that no contract was made and abrogated, and that no damages are due. Thus he sets Congress at defiance, and attempts to take the Government quite in his own exclusive hands! A few days ago the House passed a resolution inquiring whether this law had been executed. In response the President, yesterday, sent in the various papers in the case, but failed to add that as the First Comptroller had refused to obey the law, he had removed him and put some one in his place who would. It must be confessed that the spectacle is a humiliating one. It is well known that Mr. BUCHANAN is satisfied not only that the law requires payment of damages in the case, but also that the claim is a just one; and yet, although it is his duty to see the laws executed, he seems to have been quite destitute of the decision necessary to insure such execution. Not only can Mr. COBB flaunt his chief in the face with entire impunity, but Mr. MEDILL can do the same thing; and a citizen can be unjustly kept out of the money due him, month after month, and year after year, by a subordinate officer, in direct conflict with the law, and the President's view of it! One of the claimants is an old personal friend of the President's—which perhaps accounts for his supineness in the affair,—as Mr. BUCHANAN was never known to do anything for a friend, even though duty required it. He is sensible only to personal abuse, as everybody knows, and evidently practices upon the maxim that there is no need of serving one's friends, because they are already gained, and that all that sort of capital should be reserved for the conciliation of one's enemies. It is to be hoped that the expression of opinion which the present aspect of the case is likely to call out from Congress, will give the President courage enough to remove the impediment in the way of the law. Mr. MEDILL appears ambitious of a martyr's crown, and if the President dare not bestow it upon him, Congress should do it by abolishing the office which he holds. Under MEDILL'S control it has abundantly proved itself the worst of all bureaux in the "Circumlocution office."

During the three last years an effort has been made to get authority from Congress, by special act, for the creation of a Mission to Persia. In each instance the proposition failed to meet the approval of Congress, who seem to have thought that no public good was to be subserved by making this new place for some needy politician. This year, I perceive, that the attempt is renewed, but in a different shape. Instead of coming up as a distinct proposition, an appropriation for salary of a Minister to Persia, is adroitly slipped in the Diplomatic Appropriation bill among those for a dozen missions already established by law. Gentlemen who are advocating retrenchment and reform, will do well to keep an eye upon this little rider.

This attempt to get by cunning in a general bill, what has been repeatedly refused when specially presented, suggests the value of the proposition made in the House by Mr. SHERMAN, for the reference of Appropriation bills to the Committee having special charge of the subjects to which they relate, in order that they may report whether the items can be reduced in number or amount. The principle involved in this suggestion is a good one, and ought to be adopted. S.

XXXVth CONGRESS---Second Session.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 10.

Mr. DOUGLAS appeared and took his seat, upon which there was a slight attempt at applause in the gallery.

Mr. CAMERON presented a memorial from the citizens of Philadelphia in favor of the passage of the Old Soldiers' bill.

Mr. SEWARD presented a memorial from the citizens of New-York in favor of the Homestead bill.

Mr. IVERSON introduced a bill abolishing the franking privilege. Referred.

Mr. BIGLER proposed to set aside Friday and Saturday of each week to consider the private calendar. Laid over.

Mr. SIMMONS presented the credentials of Mr. ANTHONY as Senator from Rhode Island from March next.

The French Spoliation bill then came up, and Mr. DAVIS concluded his speech against it, and Mr. CRITTENDEN replied. The aguments of both were historical and legal and of great length.

Finally, the bill passed by a vote of 26 to 20.

AYES—Messrs. Bates, Bayard, Bell, Benjamin, Broderick, Cameron, Chandler, Chesnut, Clark, Clingman, Collamer, Crittenden, Dixon, Doolittle, Durkee, Foot, Foster, Hamlin, Hammond, Houston, Pearce, Seward, Simmons, Stuart, Toombs, Wilson.

NAYS—Messrs. Bigler, Bright, Clay, Davis, Douglas, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Harlan, Hunter, Iverson, Johnson of Tenn., King, Mason, Polk, Reid, Rice, Slidell, Trumbull, Ward, Yulee.

Mr. KENNEDY was temporarily absent, but would have voted aye.

After a protracted discussion, it was resolved to admit to the floor only Representatives and the Clerk of the House, Foreign Ministers, Heads of the Departments, Supreme Judges, Ex-Presidents, Ex-Vice-Presidents, and Ex-Senators.

The Appropriation Military Academy bill was then passed. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 10.

Mr. BARKSDALE, of Mississippi, offered the following, which was adopted:

Whereas, It has been announced in foreign journals that the Courts of France and England have given notice to our Government that the cession of Cuba to the United States will not be tolerated even with the consent of Spain, therefore

Resolved, That the President be, and hereby is, requested, if it is not incompatible with the public interests, to communicate to this House the correspondence between the Governments of France and England and our own, relative to the cession of Cuba to the United States.

Mr. HARRIS, of Maryland, asked, but failed to obtain, leave to offer a joint resolution, requesting the President to interfere in the Mortara case.

The House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union on the Indian Appropriation bill.

Mr. BLAIR, of Missouri, offered an amendment that no part of the appropriation for removing the Indians in Washington and Oregon to the reserves, and there temporarily maintaining them, shall be used to purchase arms and ammunition for these Indians.

Mr. PHELPS, of Missouri, explained that the Indian Bureau did not give guns to hostile Indians, and suggested a proviso that nothing herein shall interfere with the treaty stipulations, which we are bound to obey.

Mr. BLAIR'S amendment thus modified was adopted, and the bill was laid aside to be reported to the House.

The Committee proceeded to the consideration of the President's annual Message.

Mr. NICHOLS, of Ohio, wished to put on record his protest against the passage of the bill pensioning the soldiers of the war of 1812. Should it become a law it would entail a curse upon the country. It was for the benefit of mere dependents on the gratuity of the Government, at the expense of the industrial classes. The Revolutionary pension system furnished no precedent for that now proposed. Provision already exists for those disabled in the public service. The idea of pensioning men for patriotism was not in accordance with our institutions. For a reply to the argument that such pensions would stimulate a spirit of patriotism, and provide against the contingency of a large standing army, Mr. NICHOLS said the young men who rallied to our standard in the Mexican War had no stimulus of that kind. Patriotism does not need culture—it overflows in every American heart. According to his calculation nearly $13,000,000 are required annually to carry out the provisions of the bill. A pertinent inquiry was, "where is the money to come from?"

Mr. FENTON, of New-York, said we did not pension those who entered the service of 1812 and the later wars simply for service, but provided that, if any were disabled while in the line of duty, they should be pensioned from the date of the injury, to continue during life. The substitute he offered to the soldiers' bill was intended to remedy the injustice to this class of persons and to carry out the contract made with them. If the bill had embodied only those who are dependent and in want, he would have cordially supported it, and attached his substitute as an amendment.

Mr. ANDERSON, of Missouri, said the result of our policy has been to submit to outrages and insults until not only the great, but the smallest nations trample on our flag and infringe on our public and private rights. It is high time for us to assert our proper position and sternly maintain it. Our treatment from Spain has been of the most aggravated character. How can our Government expect to be respected unless it extends protection to our citizens? He did not know what instructions our Minister to Madrid has received, but he knew it would be the desire of the American people that a demand should be made for full indemnity for all wrongs. If Spain refuse this, our Minister should demand his passports and return home, and the Government should send a squadron and take possession of Cuba, as indemnity for the past and security for the future. Our self-respect demands such a course, and he flattered himself this would be the policy of the Executive. It was known that France and England are opposed to the extension of our territory. We want more action and less debate—an imperious and unalterable necessity for our acquisition of Cuba. Why should there be longer delay? Let us offer Spain a fair, nay, an exorbitant price for the island. If she refuse then we shall be justified in the eyes of all nations for taking possession of it. Mr. ANDERSON alluded to the affairs of Central America, advocating the recommendation in the President's Message, and wishing to arm the Executive with ample power to obtain redress of our grievances. There being a failure to obtain indemnity from Mexico, we should take possession of her territory all along our southern border. We should annul the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and irrespective of the opinions of foreign nations freely assert and maintain the Monroe doctrine.

Mr. WASHBURN, of Maine, characterized the Democratic Party as an oligarchy, the organ and representative of the slave propagandists, and fully committed to execute their commands. The Republican Party is the truly Democratic Party. In those States where it relied on its own principles and energies it is united and impregnable. Its fidelity to these is the condition of its success—it has nothing to gain by avoiding the real issues. He condemned squatter sovereignty, and said it had quashed CASS, DOUGLAS and its other original advocates—an omnibus would now contain all who adhere to that doctrine. He advocated legislation by Congress to prohibit Slavery in the Territories, and reprobated the Dred Scott decision. The struggle of freedom over Slavery has barely begun, and hence it becomes the duty of the Republicans to remain firm, and in no event lower its high standard of principles. When after years of uneasiness and apprehension, it became apparent to the people of the Free States that the so-called Democratic Party had been subsidized by the slaveholders, and it was seen that among the organizations of the day there was no one which from its combined earnestness and liberality was competent to maintain the cause of liberty and the Constitution of the slaveholding oligarchy, they delared not to call into existence a party for that purpose, and they called it the Republican Party. And what better name could have been given to it? It is suggestive of the better days of the Republic; it has an odor of genuine nationality; its associations are of liberty, order and law; it is the name by which the author of the Declaration of Independence and Father of the Constitution chose to be known; it speaks for itself, and needs no qualifying term. The party which is worthy to bear it should hold every lover of liberty, every hater of oppression, every opponent of hoary fanaticism, whether in the North or South. In allusion to the dangers besetting the Republican Party, he vindicated its position in reference to territorial sovereignty, and said that, abiding with old Prudence, he would not, where he had two weapons to destroy a mouster, throw one of them away.

The Committee rose, and the Indian Appropriation bill was passed, when the House adjourned.

U. S. Supreme Court.

Kentucky State Convention.

CINCINNATI, Monday, Jan. 10.

The Kentucky State Convention, on Saturday, adopted a platform indorsing the Cincinnati platform and the Dred Scott decision, encouraging the acquisition of Cuba, denouncing sectional agitation, the North, and Know-Nothingism,—indorsing the Administration, and proposing that the determination of their differences upon minor and unessential points, such as Kansas and Lecomptonism, shall not be permitted to disturb the harmony of the Democracy of Kentucky. The great feature of the Convention was the triumph of the Breckinridge interest over the Boyd party, the zealous supporters of the Lecompton policy of the Administration.

Loss of the Brig Oregon.

BOSTON, Monday, Jan. 10.

The brig Oregon, RACE, from Boston for Boothbay, in ballast, went ashore last night one quarter of a mile east of Black Rock, Cohasset, and became a total loss. The crew were saved with the exception of one man, who was washed overboard.

Mexico.

FURTHER PARTICULARS OF THE LATEST REVOLUTION IN MEXICO—FALL OF ZULOAGA—INTERESTING FROM THE RIO GRANDE.

The dates from Vera Cruz are to the 30th ult., via Minatitlan. Gen. ROBLES overthrew ZULOAGA on the 23d. Gen. ECHEAGARAY had previously pronounced in favor of ROBLES, and the Constitutionalists at Jalapa and Cordova joined him. ZULOAGA tried to compromise with ECHEAGARAY but failed, and was afterwards captured and sentenced to death by ECHEAGARAY at Puebla, but a revolt in the city of Mexico saved him.

Gen. ROBLES had released all political prisoners, and it was supposed that JUAREZ would be placed at the head of the Government.

All parties, including the Liberal, were rejoicing at Vera Cruz, at the turn affairs had taken.

Much dissatisfaction was expressed with the President's Message, so far as it related to Mexico.

By the arrival of the Gen. Rusk at New-Orleans, we have advices from the Rio Grande to Dec. 29. The Brownsville Flag quotes a statement from the Monterey Bulletin, that some seventy Mexican families from Texas have obtained permission from Governor VIDAURRI to remove into that country.

The Flag, of the 29th, notices a call from Mr. WALSH, United States Consul at Monterey, and says: "Mr. WALSH is on his way to Washington City, and will, we doubt not, lay important information before the Government, touching our relations with the people of Northern Mexico."

Metamoras just now, according to the Flag, supports two newspapers in the Spanish language, both advocating the Liberal or Constitutional cause, viz.: Las Noticias and El Liberal Republicano.

The Flag says: "We have dates from Victoria to the 18th, and from Tampico to the same date. The Rifle, of Victoria, announces that the expected conference between Governors VIDAURRI and GARZA had taken place, though the result had not yet been made public, but it understands that it has all been directed to the important end that Nuevo Leon and COAHUILA, with Tamaulipas, shall unite for the purpose of combatting the Reactionists, even to the interior of the Republic." General VIDAURRI, after terminating the conference with Governor GARZA had returned to Monterey.

COLDEST WEATHER IN SEVENTY YEARS.

People Frozen in the Streets—Scenes along the Docks—Remarkable Appearance of the Rivers.

THE WEATHER ELSEWHERE.

The cold snap of yesterday took us all by surprise, for the change in the weather was not only very sudden and very great, but the temperature of the atmosphere was lower than it had been before in this City in seventy years. At least we have the word of the Sage of Brooklyn Heights for the fact, and his thermometer and weather tables are not to be disputed. The strangest part of the phenomena was that though the sun was shining brightly the intensity of the cold kept gradually increasing from sunrise until noon, when the mercury in the thermometer touched nine below zero. People suddenly began to discover that their stoves, steam-pipes and registers did not give any heat, and business men, as they hurried down, didn't know what to make of the icicles which hung from their moustaches like the pendants from a glass chandelier. There must have been terrible suffering among the poor who were not prepared with suitable defences against the unlooked-for rigors of the season; and we fear that there will be reports of great distress on board of ships on the coast. Several cases of suffering have already been reported, and one of an omnibus driver having been actually frozen to death. The most remarkable effects of the cold were seen on the Bay and rivers, where a thick cloud of steam was seen all day, looking as though a thousand boilers were letting their steam escape. The temperature of the air was so much lower than that of the water, that the vapor ascended from the surface as though the Gulf Stream, with its tepid billows, had suddenly made a divergence through Long Island Sound into our harbor. There was but very little ice in the river during the day, but a plenty was found last night, and it will not require many such days as yesterday to put an entire stoppage to the navigation of the Sound.

The docks along the East and North Rivers were frozen, making it difficult, and in some cases impossible, to move vessels lying in them without the aid of steam-tugs. The prospect now is that the steam ice-boats will soon be required to keep the channel open.

Among the number of cases in which people were badly frozen during the day, was that of a man named WEBB, who was driving one of the Broadway and Sixth and Seventh avenue stages. He was taken from his seat on the stage in a helpless condition, and carried to a drug store, where stimulants were administered, and he revived. His hands and feet were bady frozen.

At near nightfall a newsboy went on board one of the Fulton ferry-boats, where he soon became helpless. He was noticed by some passengers, who took him down to the engine-room and rubbed him until he recovered. He had frozen his feet, and hands, and nose.

In Fulton-street, Brooklyn, a man who had been driving his horse rapidly, left him standing for a time without a blanket, while he made some purchases in a store. When he came out his horse was so stiffened by the cold, that he could not move until he had been rubbed for a long time.

THE COLD TERM.—The present cold term commenced here in the night of Friday. Saturday last, about midnight, it was immediately preceded by rain, and commenced with snow. At 11 A. M. and 12 M. to-day, the temperature, by thermometers exposed to the north wind, is nine degrees below zero—the lowest temperature recorded here during a period of seventy years. Thus far in the term, the most intense cold has been at mid-day. E. MERIAM.

THE CHESS CONTEST.

Morphy in Paris—Opening of the Match between him and Anderssen.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Thursday, Dec. 23, 1858.

For the last two years all the lions of Paris have been American. Young MORPHY, the chess-player, is the last in the list. The great match between this gentleman and Professor ANDERSSEN, of Breslau, commenced on Monday morning at 12 o'clock. M. ANDERSSEN arrived in Paris Wednesday previous, but Mr. MORPHY was confined to bed with an attack of the influenza. In the meantime Mr. ANDERSSEN played with several gentlemen at the Café de la Regence—among others, with Mr. HARRWITZ. Five games were played between these two gentlemen, two of which were won by ANDERSSEN, one by HARRWITZ, and two were drawn. Mr. ANDERSSEN also played with M. SCHONTLIN, of New-York, a few games, which resulted in favor of the former.

The great match between the champions of the Old and the New Worlds commenced, as I have said, on Monday, at Mr. MORPHY'S hotel, No. 1 Rue du Dauphin. The greatest excitement prevailed, and an arrangement was made by which the game was kept on three boards at the Café de la Regence, (only a few blocks distant,) a domestic carrying the moves every half hour. Thus the large crowd collected at the Café were enabled to follow the progress of the game. The game was commenced in the presence of Messrs. LEQUESNE, of the Institute, DE SAINT-AMANT, ARNOUS DE RIVIERE, JOURNOUD, PRETE, CARLINI, F. EDGE, JAS. MORTIMER, and your correspondent, all invited especially by Messrs. MORPHY and ANDERSSEN as witnesses to the game.

Prof. ANDERSSEN arrived at precisely 12 o'clock, in the company of Messrs. PRETE and CARLINI. Mr. MORPHY, who had not yet risen from bed after his late indisposition, did not appear for half an hour, and when he did join the party, looked so pale and feeble, that it seemed as if he was risking too much in undertaking the task he had before him. However, he declared his head all right, and rapidly shaking hands with his adversary and the party present, he stepped at once to the board, seized a black and a white pawn, changed them under the table, and held out his hand for the Professor to make a choice. Mr. MORPHY won the move, and the game commenced at once with Evans' Gambit. It had been agreed on, in previous interviews, that the winner of the first seven games should be the victor. No money was staked by the contestants, and but little by the friends of the parties for it was generally conceded that Mr. MORPHY was sure to win the match. His friends, however, were offering in the clubs of Paris and London ten to one without takers.

The first game lasted seven hours, and was won by Prof. ANDERSSEN. During the course of this game, which was conducted in the most brilliant manner, and in which were displayed an immense number of the most ingenious combinations on both sides, I had a good opportunity of studying the contestants. Nothing could be more unlike than the physique of the two players. Mr. MORPHY is a frail small boy, with a fine face and head, and a modest, almost timid air. Prof ANDERSSEN, on the contrary, is a tall man, slim, about fifty years of age, with a small, bald head, a slight stoop in the shoulders, lively black eyes, a clean shaved face, and a decidedly German cast of features. He is a quiet, gentlemanly man, with a sympathetic expression of the face, which immediately predisposes in his favor.

During this first game M. ANDERSSEN moved much more rapidly than Mr. MORPHY. Not a word was spoken by either player during the whole

ENGLISH AFFAIRS.

Political Movements—The New Reform Bill—Italy and France—Domestic Scandals—Albert Smith's New Entertainment, &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.
LONDON, Christmas Eve, 1858.

The annual truce to political conflict which in the worst of times has been agreed to in England during the last week of the year, is hailed this season with pleasure by all sections and parties. The first act of the Reform drama may be said to have closed with Mr. BRIGHT'S speech at Glasgow, which was answered on the part of the conservative Whigs by Mr. MONCRIEFF (the late Lord-Advocate) at Leith. The latter is one of the most respectable of the dilletante politicians, in whose book-wisdom his party are so much given to believe. It is whispered that he was induced to come forward on the present occasion as the eulogist and apologist of Lord PALMERSTON, and as a pioneer of his future policy in Parliament, by Mr. EDWARD ELLICE, M. P. for Coventry, who is known to be actively engaged in organizing a party of resistance to Lord DERBY'S Reform bill. The great element which this veteran parliamentary diplomatist relies on for success is alarm. The cry is everywhere raised that Mr. BRIGHT and those who think with him want to "Americanize our institutions." You will perceive how steadily this topic is worked in the Times, Morning Post and Globe. Great efforts are furthermore making to obtain the control of additional organs. The Spectator, which was purchased not many months ago by a gentleman named SCOTT, is said to be about to pass into other hands on the 1st of January, and you will, I suspect, find that its foreign and domestic politics will henceforth be identical with those of Lord CLARENDON and Sir G. C. LEWIS.

The President's Message has created less impression on this side of the water than usual. There is a very general and growing conviction that it were better for us as well as for you that Cuba should be delivered from the blighting yoke of Spain. The French Government is believed to be strongly adverse to such a transfer; and, with a man like Marshal O'DONNELL in its hands, it will of course be able to render all attempts at negotiation for purchase ineffectual. I am also credibly informed that the French Emperor is ready to act in concert with the Spaniards in the Gulf of Mexico in consideration of their entering cordially into his projected alliance, offensive and defensive, with Piedmont, for the reconstruction of Italy. If this be true, it explains the sudden change made in Queen ISABELLA'S speech to the Cortes, with reference to the Holy See. It was generally understood at Madrid that the paragraph, as originally framed, was as friendly and confiding as the most ultra of ultramontanists could have wished; but that, being telegraphed beforehand to Paris, urgent remonstrances were made from thence, which led to the adoption at the last moment of some unmeaning phrases, calculated to show the Vatican that if it resisted French counsels, and followed those of Austria, it could not hope to have its own way with the Court of Spain. It is quite true, I am sorry to say, that Lord MALMESBURY has been trying hard for a restoration of diplomatic intercourse with Naples. He has been baffled for the present, (luckily for himself and his friends in Parliament) by the firmness of LOUIS NAPOLEON and the obstinacy of FERDINAND. It is the desire of the former to keep the embers of quarrel alive, and, therefore, it is obvious why he should take his stand inflexibly on the joint demands of 1856, the refusal of which led to the withdrawal of the French and English Embassies, and no pretence of acceding to which has since then been made. But it is not so clear why the Court of Gaeta should persist in remaining on terms of alienation from England, Austria, and—before the installation of the Regent—Prussia likewise, was exceedingly anxious to effect a reconciliation. Lord MALMESBURY proposed that the Western Powers should be content with the publication of a general amnesty; and although this was deemed insufficient by France, had it been offered last Autumn it would have been difficult for the British Cabinet to assign any sufficient reason for acting upon it. Bourbon infatuation, however, once more prevailed; and the utmost that could be extracted from the Tormentor of the Two Sicilies was that he would send a Minister Plenipotentiary to St. James' or the Tuileries, without any further explanations, provided he knew that he would be received. This was of course treated as a mere impertinence, and the matter has for the present been allowed to drop.

The visit of the Grand Duke CONSTANTINE to Villafranca, in command of a Russian squadron of three screw ships-of-the-line, and two steam corvettes, has not tended to allay the misgivings felt in certain quarters regarding the intentions of his country next year. The absurd stories about the cession of the little towns and harbor on the Piedmontese coast are well nigh already forgotten; but it is palpable that the Russians are bent on making use of the place as a theatre for exhibiting their naval and other resources to the excitable Italians, and there can be little doubt that they mean to form there a dépôt of incendiarism against Austria. While he was there, the Grand Duke laid the foundation of a Greek Church, a circumstance which has been gravely complained of as a wanton affront to the papal supremacy, without precedent or parallel. The rapid journey of the Grand Duke to Paris, and his exclusive occupation with matters of State, during his brief sojourn there this week, has capped the climax of dissatisfaction and distrust. He has now returned to his fleet in the Mediterranean, and means to steer eastward. Will he honor Corfu at the present juncture with a visit, or pass Athens by without looking in?

What I told some weeks ago respecting the British Envoy to Washington was some days since officially confirmed. A high opinion is entertained among those who know him of the spirit and good sense of Lord LYONS. His predecessor's promotion to Berlin has been delayed at the request, it is said, of the Prince of Prussia, who, for a time at least, wishes that Lord BLOOMFIELD should remain, possessing as he does great experience and considerable personal knowledge of men and things in Northern Germany. Lord NAPIER, in all likelihood, will eventually succeed him; in the meanwhile, he is to be sent to the Hague to negotiate a marriage between the Princess ALICE and the youthful Prince of Orange. It is a curious fact that a similar connection to that formed between the daughter of JAMES II. and the celebrated hero of 1688 has repeatedly been attempted during successive reigns, but that in every instance it has failed. The unfortunate Princess CHARLOTTE was all but betrothed to the father of the present King of the Netherlands, but insisted upon refusing her hand in order to bestow it on LEOPOLD, now King of the Belgians. It remains to be seen whether in the case now contemplated the old precedent will follow.

A curious story of fashionable life has gained currency here, in which the names of more than one individual of distinction is freely mixed up. The daughter of an eminent public man, not very long married, was staying for some weeks at an hotel in Bond-street, and occupied apartments on the ground floor. Very late one night a person was observed, by the policeman in charge of the locality, to open one of the windows from outside, enter the room, and close the window again after him. On alarm being given, the inmates of the house were aroused, and search being made, the invader was at length discovered, not in the room which he had entered, but in an adjoining one, which formed part of the suite usually occupied by the youthful and handsome matron. Finding that he was recognized as the son of a Peer of sporting notoriety, he endeavored to excuse himself, on the score that it was merely a practical joke, and that it had been done for a bet. The lady's friends and family, however, evinced so much concern on the occasion, that an Italian lady, who happened to be staying at the same time in the hotel, volunteered, or was induced, to write a letter stating that she had no objection to declare herself the object of the young Lothario's midnight search, and that she was quite willing to forgive him. The strangest part of the matter is, that the husband of the young lady is said to have been weak enough to show this extraordinary epistle to many of his friends.

ALBERT SMITH has recommenced his popular entertainments this week, with an account of his voyage to China, and his personal observations and experiences there. His reception by the public, who have for some time missed his familiar voice, and who are proportionably glad to recognize it again, was most enthusiastic. I need not recapitulate the topics of his narrative, which occupy a considerable space in our daily journals, but I believe it is quite true that he has sold the fuller details of his travels to Messrs. ROUTLEDGE for £1,000. My own astonishment has always been that he should have been able to keep up the public attention so long with the old stories, but it certainly was high time for him to try a new field of fun; and his expedition to Canton was certainly a happy thought, and will no doubt repay him richly for his trouble. Personally, he is eminently deserving of all the good fortune that may attend him. A more devoted son, brother, or friend never existed. He is the very soul of geniality and munificence. After many years struggle with the world, he had no sooner chanced upon the source of emolument he has of late found so prolific, than he resolved to set apart a sufficient sum to make a provision for an afflicted sister, who was dependent upon him; and having accumulated the amount (£3,000) he resolved to put it out of his own power by converting it into an annúity for the life of the object of his solicitude. At his villa beyond Fulham he is constantly surrounded by artists and men of letters. His enjoyment of society is like the mirth of a boy, ever fresh, frolicsome and contagious, though seldom giving you anything that you can remember or carry away with you. Lest his mother, a sedate old lady, should be disturbed by the revelry in which he delights, he has set apart for her use a pretty little detached cottage within his grounds, to which he pays a filial visit every morning. He is, in a word, all that the French understand by that most meaning phrase un bon enfant.

Miss ANNA BISHOP has reappeared upon our concert boards since her return from America. The critics are not agreed about her having improved during her absence, and some maintain even the contrary. She seems to run the risk of encouraging the latter opinion, by consenting to sing at JULLIEN'S noisy and commonplace réunions. The only novelty which this Soyer of musical entertainment has produced this Winter is the Hungarian violinist WIENIAWSKI, whose name people are beginning to learn how to write, but will never succeed in their endeavors of pronouncing. As a musician, he is not considered equal to some others, but his feats of dexterity on the instrument surpass anything that has been heard since the conjuring days of PAGANINI.

The English Opera Company have migrated to Covent Garden, which they opened on the 20th, with BALFE'S new opera of "Satanella." The house was crowded, the piece successful, and both author and prima donna were overwhelmed with compliments and garlands. BALFE can never get out of the pleasant amble in which he delights to prance away. There is no sign of greater depth or intensity of feeling in his new work, and to grandeur of effect he never aspires. But "Satanella" fully sustains the reputation he had established by the "Bohemian Girl" and the "Rose of Castile;" and it must be confessed that the discerning British public understand and like this sort of thing much better than MOZART or BEETHOVEN. Great curiosity is felt in the musical world both here and in Paris about VERDI'S last opera, recently produced at Naples with immense success. "Simon Boccanegra" is founded on an episode in one of the novels of GURAZZI, and possesses, it is said, unusual claims to dramatic merit, while it sustains all its gifted author's reputation for lyric and orchestral composition.

The American and British Navies.

An important paper, on the modifications which the ships of the British Navy have undergone during the present century, was read by Mr. REED, naval architect, at the weekly meeting of the Society of Arts, in London, Dec. 15, 1858—Admiral Sir CHARLES NAPIER in the chair. In describing the ships of the British Navy, as they were at the commencement of the present century, Mr. REED contrasted them with American vessels at the same period. In the war of 1812, the inferiority of the British ships was disastrously demonstrated. The large American frigates which assailed them were too powerful to be successfully resisted. Their superiority was not confined to size alone; their armaments likewise greatly exceeded those of British ships nominally of the same class, the latter carrying many light carronades that counted as cannon, and ours being sometimes armed with guns 50 per cent. greater in number than they were supposed to bear.

The result was that many a British flag was struck, and the star of Britain's naval supremacy seemed destined to set in Western waters. This so far stirred her naval authorities as to induce them to build new vessels of uncommon size, and to cut down several two-decked ships and arm them as first-class frigates. The conclusion of this war, and that with France, afforded leisure for the improvements subsequently made in the forms of the bow and stern; but real progressive improvement in naval construction was stopped for a time by the innovations of Sir W. SYMONDS, to whose neglect of Captain ERICSSON'S submerged propeller it is due that the invention was first introduced into the war navy of America.

Coming down to the present period of the Russian war, Mr. REED quoted Captain DAHLGREN'S opinion of the English gunboats, and then proceeded to enumerate the ships of each class in the Royal Navy, with the number and calibre of their guns. Upon the latter point he said:

"It is, in my judgment, impossible to point out any very glaring defects in the principle upon which they are armed. This latter statement cannot well be tested otherwise than by a comparative reference to foreign navies. The only two of these to which I need refer are those of France and the United States. As to the former, I have carefully examined the official records, and I find no ground whatever for considering that the armaments of French ships-of-war are in any way superior to our own. With regard to the American Navy, we have heard, indeed, much that sounds formidable recently, especially of the Niagara and the Merrimac. Of the former of these vessels I need say but little, as the American Government itself places small confidence in her. She is, it is true, a gigantic vessel, but carries only a dozen shell guns; and our own frigate Diadem, of about two-thirds her size, would speedily overpower her, either at short or long range. The Merrimac is certainly a very formidable vessel. Captain DAHLGREN, in his recently published work on 'Shells and Shell-guns,' draws a careful comparison between her and our own Shannon, and very fairly decides that the Merrimac is the more powerful ship of the two; but seeing that, as he admits, her tonnage is one-fifth greater than the Shannon's, we might well be astonished if she were not of superior power. We have, however, other vessels similar in size to the Merrimac, one class of which is armed entirely with heavy 68-pounders, from which, of course, 8-inch shells can be most effectively fired; and another class, armed with a combination of 10-inch shell-guns and 68-pounders of 95 cwt. The vessels of both these classes are fitted with engines of no less than 1,000 horse-power, by virtue of which they will probably attain a speed of twelve or fourteen knots per hour, while the Merrimac makes eight knots only. The advantages of this superiority of speed I need not dwell upon. Captain DAHLGREN has himself since said, in reference to these vessels, 'There can be little doubt that with any reasonable success in applying their capabilities they must become the most formidable of ships-of-war.'"

In reference to the recent gun-practice at Portsmouth, upon floating batteries, and the refusal of the Admiralty to furnish him with a copy of the reports made upon the trials, Mr. REED mentioned what he called "a remarkable idiosyncracy" of that department, namely: that its functionaries seem to consider it a special duty to deny to the British Press and public, and to the officers of minor States from which nothing is to be apprehended, information and facilities for gaining information which they readily accord to officers of the French, Russian and other Governments which might prove inimical to England. "I have known," he said, "Russian officers, in particular, have authority to pass freely over our dock-yards, while Brazilian officers are refused permission to enter the gates even to see a ship launched, and Englishmen have to go about under the surveillance of a policeman." Having touched upon the proposed steam-rams of Mr. NASMYTH and Admiral Sir G. SARTORIOUS, Mr. REED thus referred to the American ram:

"The 'rams nest,' lately discovered in America, is very much like another kind of nest which some people are very often finding. The 'ram' that it contains need occasion no alarm. It has already cost the American Government $800,000, and a Committee appointed to examine it is said to have reported that it will take $800,000 more to complete the operations begun. It is, therefore, exceedingly likely to remain in its nest for very many years to come; indeed, an American scientific paper, sometime since, pronounced it fit only for exhibition to visitors, at three cents a head, as a monument of folly."

Mr. REED is of opinion that Great Britain, having the finest navy in the world, need only maintain it in its present strength and efficiency, adopting improvements when they were introduced into the war navies of other States. By availing of all the warlike agencies which science may supply, she may certainly, he observed, make her navy most terrible; but the result would be a combination of all other Powers against her, whilst her true policy is neither to encourage ambitious powers by her weakness, nor alarm timid Powers by her strength.

Mr. MACINTOSH, the projector of the famous naptha and potassium plan for enabling the British fleet to destroy Sebastopol; Admiral Sir G SARTORIOUS and Mr. NASMYTH, now of steam-ram celebrity,—the former having proposed to convert the Leviathan to that purpose; General Sir C. SHAW, Mr. SCOTT RUSSELL, (the eminent iron ship-builder,) and several others, took part in the discussion which followed. Mr. S. RUSSELL made some remarkable statements with reference to the Admiralty and the floating batteries. A Committee of Naval Architects, appointed by the Admiralty, produced an elaborate and very valuable report on the principles according to which the future fleet of England should be constructed. This report had been printed at the cost of the nation, but not a copy could be got from the Admiralty, though it had, somehow, found its way to Russia and France, by which circuitous route it had reached Mr. S. RUSSELL. He hoped this report would some day be printed, if not by the Admiralty, through the instrumentality of the copy which had surreptitiously come into his possession.

With regard to the construction of iron batteries and rams, there were one or two persons to whom justice should be done. The introduction of iron plates originated, not with the Emperor NAPOLEON, but with Mr. STEVENS, of New-York, who, when in England ten years ago, confided to him, as a secret, the results of some experiments that had been made by the American Government with regard to iron plates. From all that he had heard of Mr. STEVENS' steam ram, Mr. S. RUSSELL thought it was a very clever idea—quite clever enough to be begun, but a great deal too clever ever to be brought to a successful issue. He believed that the idea of 4-inch iron plates originated not with LOUIS NAPOLEON, but with Mr. LLOYD, of the English Admiralty. The former suggested the putting on of a number of thin plates, one over another; the latter, when he heard of the imperial plan, thought one thick plate would answer better, and asked the contractors if they could make plates of that thickness. "They replied," said Mr. RUSSELL, "that it was impossible, but, nevertheless, if they were ordered, they would do it; and they did it, as a matter of course."

Sir CHARLES NAPIER, in proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. REED, said he could not let it go forth to the public that England had the large available naval force stated in the paper. Instead of 51 line-of-battle ships, there were not half that number ready for sea, though there might be as many built and launched. In fixing the available ships at half the total given by Mr. REED, he meant screw-line-of-battle ships, as he regarded all sailing ships-of-war as so much waste timber. In the Channel there were only six sail of the line, and there ought to be at least ten. Mr. REED, in acknowledging the vote of thanks, remarked that inasmuch as the returns he had given of the naval force of France included vessels building, he thought it only fair to give the statistics of the British Navy on the same principle.

A New Atlantic Telegraph Scheme.

A new Great Ocean Telegraph Company has been established for the purpose of connecting Great Britain with America by means of Mr. ALLAN'S system of submarine wires. The primary object is, of course, to establish a direct communication between London and New-York by a line from the Land's-end to Halifax, the chief naval station of British North America, as well as the inlet to all the telegraphic lines of communication, not only of the Canadas, but of the United States generally. Hereafter the Company intimate that a branch line may be carried by Bermuda to Jamaica, and thence by connecting lines to the other West India Islands, the Central States of America, and the Brazils. By this independent route, starting from the Land's-end, the cost of an average message between London and Halifax will not exceed 30 shillings, as it avoids all the delays and heavy charges consequent on forming working agreements with other companies. The sea route proposed is also a very good one, though on the average deeper than that across which the Atlantic cable has been laid, and, we fear may now say lost, as well. This increased depth of water would most undoubtedly be a considerable disadvantage to any company not working with cables constructed on Mr. ALLAN'S system; but, with these cables, the deeper the water the safer they are, for their mechanical and physical attributes, combining as they do the maximum of conducting power and strength with the minimum of weight and specific gravity, render their safe submergence in the greatest depths a very simple mechanical operation. The chief advantages of Mr. ALLAN'S system of submarine ropes consists in making them of the utmost lightness consistent with their strength—in doing away entirely with the outside covering of spiral wire and making the core or conductor of the cable its main strength. The weight per mile of the line proposed from Lands'-end to Halifax, is only 10 cwt., while its specific gravity is as low as 1.35,—just sufficient to insure its sinking very slowly without any strain upon the rope while being paid out from the ship. The mode of its construction is one large solid copper wire, or conductor, wound round closely with fine iron wire. This is inclosed in three very thick thick coats of gutta percha, the whole being bound round with strands of tarred string.

Immense Claim to Property in New-York—Law Suits Coming.

From the Oswego Palladium, Dec 28.

It will be remembered, that some three years ago, we gave an account of the accidental discovery of some old title-deeds to a large landed property in New-York and New-Jersey, which had been lost for years, and which the heirs had been unable to discover; that the property covered by those titles was located in the heart of New-York city, and was of immense value; and that a number of the heirs resided in the city of Oswego, and that steps would be taken to recover possession of the property from the occupants, &c. This statement of ours elicited extensive inquiry in regard to the matter, and excited much interest.

Since that period, little has been heard of the matter by the public. But the heirs have not, in the meantime, been idle. They have been industriously engaged in hunting up and ferreting out other evidence and facts bearing upon the subject, and organizing and preparing for an application to the Courts for possession of the property they claim.

An association of the heirs was formed for the purpose of raising funds and employing trustees, counsel, &c. We are now informed that they have been successful in their efforts. They have secured the necessary funds, have appointed three trustees to manage the affair, have retained the best counsel to be found, and are now ready to proceed energetically to the trial of their title, with those in occupancy, and to recover what they claim has so long been held unjustly from them. During the period that has elapsed since our first announcement of this curious discovery, the heirs have been industriously pursuing their investigations, and have succeeded in the discovery of an amount of important evidence, confirmatory of their claim. The legal papers of eminent but deceased lawyers have been overhauled; and as high as $100 has been paid by the heirs for the privilege of looking through such papers, which have thrown great light upon the subject, and furnish proofs previously unknown.

In regard to the estate involved, we are informed that the City of New-York occupies a large amount of it, embracing some twenty-five lots in the Park, on Broadway and Chambers-street, and there are many other pieces in different parts of the City, occupied by private parties. The heirs have brought to light deeds of interest in the Teller estate, running from Chambers-street up Broadway, to about the centre of the block, between Reade and Pearl streets, thence to Corlear's Hook; thence back to Chambers, near Chatham. The heirs claim one-third interest in this property, which was sold by the TELLERS to DAVID PROVOST, and to his widow, CHRISTIAN PROVOST. The claim of the heirs also extends over a large amount of property in New-Jersey, Newburg, in Ulster County, &c.

Having accumulated the necessary proofs and evidence of title, and made all necessary arrangements, we understand the heirs will commence suits of ejectment next month, against the City of New-York, and individual occupants of property claimed. It will be very apt to create a sensation, and the heirs and the counsel, we learn, are confident of final success in recovering possession.

One of the heirs in Oswego is Mr. N. MILLS, an old, respected and well-known citizen, who has been very active in the investigation of the subject, and has been instrumental in discovering much of the strong evidence of title. He has been employed by the heirs for this purpose, and is one of the trustees of the association. We shall await the issue of this important matter with much interest.

It is understood that the Canadian Government has come to a definite resolution to assume the debt incurred by deepening Lake St. Peter. The importance of this step to the trade of Montreal is very great. Rumor says that the Lower Canada Ministers insisted on a definite resolution on this point at the time the seat of Government policy was determined.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY ABROAD.

Americans and their Inventions and Doings in Europe.

From Our Own Correspondent.
PARIS, Thursday, Dec. 23, 1858.

In a late letter I gave you the history of the triumph of certain modifications in surgery introduced into France by American surgeons. I propose, to-day, to give you a resumé of American industry abroad, giving the place of honor, on account of its extent, to dentistry. I ought to mention first, however, that Dr. BOYMAN'S operation has been adopted so rapidly, that it is declared by the best surgeons of Paris as the only operation to be practiced hereafter for the malady which it is destined to remedy; and we thus see a young American surgeon introducing into France, and at the great seat of medical science, a certain cure for a malady which the most distinguished surgeons of two centuries have sought for with but indifferent success. In their notices of Doctor BOYMAN'S operation, however, the surgeons who have thus far lectured upon it, have not failed to give credit to other surgeons who were more or less successful in the cure of the accident in question. Thus, in Europe, DIFFENBACH and JOBERT have been particularly successful in its treatment, M. JOBERT claiming to cure one-third of his cases by a very simple operation; while in America, Dr. HAYWARD of Boston, as long ago as 1828, performed the operation successfully, and to him is due great credit for the modifications he introduced. To Dr. SIMMES, also, of New-York, credit is given for his improvements in this operation within late years, while astonishment is expressed that Dr. SIMMES should so singularly designate himself in a public address as the instrument especially selected by Providence to discover a cure for a malady which had been already cured even in his own country while he was yet in his infancy. I ought to mention here also that the practice of local etherization by means of electricity is becoming general as well in surgery as in dentistry. It is felt that all that is required to generalize this practice is a better knowledge of the particular cases to which it is adapted and of the manner of applying it; and regret is expressed by the French surgeons that they have not access to the experiments and the experience of American surgeons.

I will not pretend to explain why dentistry in Europe is so far behind that in the United States. It is most singular that, in France, where surgery and the accessories of the toilet have been brought to the highest perfection, the art of the dentist should have been left so completely in the rear. Until very lately, the art was ranked among the lowest of trades; a dentist was in fact but a puller of teeth, and one of the commonest expressions in French is, even to this day, "Il ment comme un arracheur de dents!" (He lies like a dentist, or a tooth-puller.) It was not until American dentists settled in France that the art was at all respected, or indeed deserved to be respected.

Mr. BREWSTER was the pioneer of American dentists in Europe. He settled in Paris in 1836, and soon became the dentist of LOUIS PHILLIPPE, the Czar NICHOLAS, and other monarchs. He was bought out by Mr. THOMAS W. EVANS, of Lancaster, Penn., in 1850, who, with his brother THEODORE, now continues the business. These gentlemen not only maintain the position ceded them by Dr. BREWSTER, but they have extended it. They are the dentists to the courts of France, Russia, Bavaria, Wurtemburg and, I believe, of Belgium and Saxony. With such high protection it may be readily conceived that the practice of these gentlemen is immense. Besides the Legion of Honor granted to the elder brother by the Emperor of France, both the brothers have received decorations and rich gifts from the other monarchs by whom they are employed. They have just built on the Avenue de l'Imperatrice a private residence, which is an ornament to that new and elegant thoroughfare.

Mr. JAMES FOWLER, formerly a partner of the deceased HARVEY BURDELL, afterwards established in Bleecker-street, New-York, came to this city four years ago, and went into business as a dentist on the Boulevard des Italiens in partnership with a French merchant by the name of PRETERRE, the latter furnishing the funds for the establishment of the house. At the end of three years, however, Mr. FOWLER sought and obtained before the tribunals a dissolution of the partnership, and at once established a new house in the Place de la Madeleine. Since his residence in Paris this gentleman has made several pieces in gold for the replacement of lost parts, which excited the astonishment and the admiration of the Academy of Medicine and of the entire faculty of Paris. Among these were an entire lower jaw in gold with the teeth affixed, several upper jaws, obturators, etc. Although not new in America, it was the first time any successful attempt of the kind had been made in Europe; and Mr. F. is now in the enjoyment of a first-rate reputation and practice. Mr. PRETERRE obtained a workman from the United States of the name of FOWLER, and is continuing the business at the old place under the name of FOWLER & PRETERRE.

Mr. HORNER, of Philadelphia, is a partner in the long-established English house in the Rue de Luxembourg, which now bears the name of STEVENS, WATSON & HORNER. This is the largest and richest dental establishment in the world, its income reaching $60,000 a year. Gold work, however, has only been introduced into this house since the entrance of Dr. HORNER. Previously, their artificial pieces were made of hippopotamus entire, and decayed teeth were filled with amalgams—the ancient French and English system.

Dr. GAGE, formerly of Mobile, has also established himself in Paris as a dentist, and like the other, is doing a good business.

Mr. POTTER, an American dentist, who has practiced in Bombay and in Lisbon, has been for some years established in this city, and lately took into partnership a dentist of New-York, Mr. CRANE.

Dr. PARMLY, for merly of New-Orleans, an elder brother of Dr. ELEAZER PARMLY, of New-York, has been practising dentistry for three years past, upon children in the schools of Paris and London, till an attack of typhoid fever, followed by partial paralysis, disabled him from the active pursuit of his profession. He continues to reside in Paris, however, and gives advice to families and schools in regard to the care of the mouth in young people.

A gentleman who announces himself to the public as an American dentist, Dr. KOTH, "formerly of the United States, late dentist to Her Majesty the Queen of Spain," has established himself in Paris, within a month. Dr. KOTH, according to his circular, speaks English, German, Spanish and Swedish; but judging from the Doctor's name, we think he ought to have commenced his enumeration of languages with the Swedish.

As I was passing rapidly in a carriage, a few days ago, through an obscure quarter of the Faubourg St. Germain, I had a hasty glance at a sign which had evidently just come from the painter's hands, and which bore the words, Dentiste Americain, preceded by a name of the purest Gallic origin. So, you see how the current is running.

So wide-spread is the reputation of American dentistry, that the teeth of nearly every monarch in Europe are filled, pulled and replaced by Americans, or soi-disant Americans. Thus, as I have already mentioned, the EVANS' of Paris, are the dentists to the Courts of France, Russia Bavaria, Wurtemburg, and some other smaller States. At Rome, Dr. BURGESS, an American, is the principal dentist; at Madrid it is Dr. MCKEEHAN, another American. The principal dentist of Berlin is Dr. ABBOTT, of Bangor, Maine, while the Court dentist is a German who studied in America, and who calls himself in consequence an American dentist. At Vienna, where it is almost impossible for a foreigner to get permission to do business, Dr. NORTH, also of the State of Maine, has rapidly gained the first position among the aristocracy, although he has not yet arrived at the Court. When he first went to Vienna, Mr. NORTH was obliged by the police restrictions from giving any publicity, either by advertisements or by a sign at the door. While stowed away privately in the upper part of a house, wondering whether his enterprise was going to fail or succeed, he was one day surprised at receiving the visit of Prince LICHTENSTEIN, who came to get work done. The American complained of the rigors of the police, and the Prince said to him, "Never mind the police; take a house to suit you, put your sign out, and if they trouble you come to me." Mr. NORTH did as the Prince advised, the Prince sent his daughters and others of his relatives and acquaintances, and from that day the fortune of Dr. NORTH was a fixed fact. He numbers now in his protectors not only the LICHTENSTEINS, but the METTERNICHS and the SCHARTZENBERGS.

In St. Petersburg, the aristocracy employ two Irishmen, brothers, who studied their profession with Dr. BREWSTER at Paris, and who call themselves American dentists.

The principal dentist at Hamburg is Dr. COHEN, who studied in America, and calls himself an American dentist.

The brothers TELLANDER, who studied dentistry in New-York, do the Court and the principal business in Stockholm and Christiana, the capitals of Sweden and Norway.

There are a few other dentists scattered through the German Confederation, Germans by birth, who received their professional education in the United States, and who call themselves American dentists.

At London, Mr. RANN, an American dentist, has rapidly reached a large practice, in exclusively aristocratic families. Another American, whose name I forget, has also arrived at a large practice in London. At Manchester there has been an American dentist for a good many years. This closes the chapter on dentistry.

Two American physicians are in practice in Paris, Dr. BIGELOW, of Boston, and Dr. BEYLARD, of Philadelphia, both graduates of the School of Paris. The latter gentleman, however, is of French origin; he was two years house physician in the wards of Dr. TROUSSEAU, at the Hotel-Dieu. Both these gentlemen are doing well, but fortunately for the small American colony in Paris, their business is not confined exclusively to their countrymen.

We have no American lawyer in Paris, although we need one. But we have two ministers and two places of worship regularly established. The chapel built by the Americans in the Rue du Berry last year, continues under the pastoral charge of the Rev. Mr. SEELEY. The Episcopalians, however, have organized a congregation and secured a place of worship in one of the upper rooms of the Church of the Oratoire in the Rue St. Honoré. From a dozen members, three months ago, this new congregation has reached nearly a hundred. It is called the American Episcopal Chapel in Paris, and its pastor is the Rev. W. O. LAMSON, late of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, New-York.

The number of American artists now in Paris is extremely limited. Mr. KELLOGG is still occupied on oriental subjects. Mr. WHITE is painting a picture for the State of Maryland—"Washington Resigning his Commission." Mr. MAY has a variety of subjects on the easel. Mr. CRANCH has gone to Italy. Mr. FAGNANI, the sculptor, late of New-York, has fixed himself permanently on the Champs Elysées, and is engaged on busts. Mr. THOMPSON, the American photographic artist, and photographer to the ROTHSCHILD family, continues on the Boulevard des Italiens. An American daguerreotypist has lately established himself in the Rue du Faubourg Poissonière.

Of bankers, we have in Paris three American houses, JOHN MUNROE & CO., LANSING, BALDWIN & CO., and GREEN & CO. The latter house, which suspended two years ago, will resume business again the first of January at the old place, Place St. Georges, under the title of VANDERBROCK, GREEN & CO.

Since the Great Exhibition of 1855, several American inventions are manufactured on a large scale in France. Of these the most important are McCORMICK'S and MANNY'S Reapers, the Vulcanized India Rubber of GOODYEAR, (which has acquired an immense extension, and employs daily several thousand men,) the Sewing Machines of SINGER, and GROVER & BAKER & CO., and of WHEELER & WILSON, TUCKER'S Artificial Marble, PITT'S Threshing Machines, CHAMBERLAIN'S Cork Cutter, and a variety of other inventions.

MALAKOFF.

ARIZONA AND SONORA.....No. IV.

Silver Mines.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In March, 1856, the Sonora Exploring and Mining Company was formed in Cincinnati, and a party under the direction of Col. C. D. POSTON was sent to Arizona to explore for silver mines. Col. POSTON located with his company at Tubac, a deserted Mexican Puebla, in the centre of the territory, and explored the neighborhood. The extensive and valuable ranch known as the Arivaca was purchased. On this ranch were found one gold and a few silver mines that many years ago were worked by the Mexicans in their usual primitive style. The silver mine known as the Heintzelman was discovered six miles from Arivaca, among foot-hills near the Cerra Colorado.

This mine has been developed sufficiently to prove that it is a monster mother vein, uncommonly regular and of exceeding richness. This was a fresh discovery, in a region where the earth had never been broken. Detached pieces of ore scattered about led to the discovery of the vein. The ore has the appearance of copper ore, and contains a large percentage of that metal. The process of reduction is by amalgamation, unless a large quantity of lead ore is used as an auxiliary, in which case it can be smelted.

The following report recently made shows the result of the first attempt at smelting in an ordinary Mexican furnace:

"The first furnace at Cerro Colorado, near the Heintzelman vein (belonging to the Sonora Exploring and Mining Company,) gave at the first operation, from 55 hours smelting, 14 pounds of silver. This result was better than could be expected from the very first charge; especially if we take into consideration that the furnace was new, cold, and not even quite dry; the lead ore, used as auxiliary means, very quartzose; the material to operate on new to the smelters, and even the necessary old slag was wanting for the first operation.

In four days after, the furnace was again at work, yielding in 10 smeltings, of 599 hours, 305 marks of silver out of 5,251 pounds of silver ore from the Heintzelman vein. I have to observe that the process of smelting required the addition of 17,564 pounds of lead ore from the Company's mines at Arivaca. Besides this quantity of silver, we obtained 300 pounds of copper out of the same ore.

The furnace used was of common adobes (sun-dried bricks) 10 inches square inside and 8 feet high. The bellows were made on the spot, and the whole concern caused an expense only of about $250. The inside of the furnace is lined with a kind of metamorphic sand-stone, containing an abundance of quartz crystals, cemented together by a very pure clay. This stone resists the fire better than the best fire-proof brick, and is procured from the Cerro Colorado peak, close to the mine. The Company has now finished five furnaces, and one is in course of erection.

But the reduction of the ores by smelting is only preliminary and temporary, until the amalgamation works, which are now being put up, are ready to do the work on a larger scale. It was from the first the intention to amalgamate, (and not to smelt,) for which purpose the necessary machinery was made, last March, at Mr. GODDARD'S foundry, in San Francisco. It would have been up and in operation ere this, had not the long and difficult land transportation caused a considerable delay in getting it on the ground.

The yield as above stated was 305 marks, equal to 2,287½ ounces Troy in silver. If we assume the 8¾ tons of lead ore used to have yielded of this 400 ounces—which I think is about right—then the 5,252 lbs. of Heintzelman ore yielded 1887 ounces, which gives to the ton a yield of 718 ounces of silver, worth about $935, to which must be added $75 of copper, giving a total of $1,010 per ton."

Here are facts, from which those interested can draw their own conclusions. The ore from the Heintzelman mine has averaged to the present time 45 cents per pound. The amalgamation works, of which mention has been made, will be in operation the present month. Estimating the ore to yield 45 cents per pound, these works will turn out $3,000 per day. With power to multiply amalgamation works, and an inexhaustible supply of ore, beginning with the surface, to draw upon this mine will, doubtless, ere long, make some astounding developments. This result is beyond peradventure.

Other companies have more recently taken up mines and commenced operations, but they are not sufficiently advanced to exhibit that certainty of profitable results which the Heintzelman mine can claim. Companies of large capital are also forming in New-England to work mines in Arizona.

It is not probable that such as the Heintzelman vein will be readily found. But there is every reason to believe that these companies, skillfully managed, will meet with great success. Rich mines will be discovered—as rich, perhaps, and even richer than the Heintzelman—within the [illegible] mining district, the extent of which is yet to be made apparent.

It is well known that the most colossal fortunes the world ever saw have been based on the silver mines of Mexico.

The explorations of HUMBOLDT, more than fifty years ago, and the facts given by WARD, in his book, entitled, Mexico in 1827, are remarkably pertinent to the operations in Arizona at the present day. HUMBOLDT stated in 1803 that mining in Mexico had been confined to a narrow circle—a few central spots—and that the labors of the Spaniard ceased precisely where the great mineral treasures of Mexico commenced, about lat. 24°.

His estimate of the yield of the silver mines of Mexico, from the Conquest to 1803, a period of two hundred and eighty-two years, was $1,767,952,000. In 1733, the coinage of all the mints in Mexico was placed under the charge of the Government, and returns of the annual coinage regularly kept. By this register, it appears that the produce of the mines of Mexico from that date to June, 1826, a period of ninety-three years, was $1,435,658,611. (See Ward's Mexico, 1827.)

WARD also says:

"The metals seem to increase in richness as you approach the North. Contracts for the mine of Arizpa, (the ancient capital of Sonora,) about 30° north latitude, have been taken up in a situation possessing great local advantages, a fertile country, the vicinity of two large rivers and a communication by water with the Pacific. The mines themselves were formerly celebrated for their richness, and the capital required to bring them into activity is very small.

The specimens which I have seen of the ores extracted from them, almost induce one to adopt the theory that the proportion of silver contained in the ores increases as you advance towards the North; a theory which is very generally believed at present in Mexico, and which is certainly confirmed by the superiority of all northern ores to those of the richest districts of the South.

The idea probably originated in the discovery of the famous Bolas de Plata, (balls of silver,) of Arizona, in the beginning of the last century, which was, and probably still is, believed in Europe to be one of those fables with which mining countries abound. But the attention of the present Government of Mexico having been drawn to the subject, a search was made in the viceregal archieves by order of the President, for the correspondence, which was known to have taken place respecting it in the year 1736.

This correspondence I have seen, and I have in my possession a certified copy of a decree of PHILIP VII, dated Aranjuez, 28th May, 1741, the object of which was to terminate a prosecution, instituted by the Royal Fiscal, against the discoverers of Arizona, for having defrauded the treasury of the duties payable upon the masses of pure silver found there.

The decree states that the weight of the balls, sheets and other pieces of silver discovered (bolas, planches y otras piezas de plata) to have amounted to 165 arrobas, 8

THE FILLIBUSTERS.

Narrative of the Voyage and Shipwreck of the Susan.

From the Mobile Mercury.

SOUTHWEST KEY, GLOVER'S REEF, HONDURAS, Tuesday, Dec. 21, 1858.

GENTLEMEN: It is my duty to report to you the total loss of the schooner Susan, under my command.

We had been forced in on this coast by adverse winds; the vessel not proving at all weatherly in the heavy head sea then running. At 3 o'clock A. M., on the 16th inst., I discovered from my position on the poop, breakers on the lee-bow, and immediately ordered the helm to be put "down" and the yards braced sharply up. The man at the helm, in his fright and confusion, put the wheel hard "up," which brought the schooner before the wind, and before there was time to remedy the error, the Susan went stem on to a sunken coral reef, with eight knots headway. In a very few moments she bilged and broke in two. The foremast we cut away, and the mainmast jumped out of the step, carrying with it the mizzen topmast, and throwing Mr. VAN SLYCKE (acting 2d officer) into the breaker's under our lee, from whence he was fortunately rescued by the gallantry of a seaman named Jos. WITTGENSTEIN.

Daylight revealed to us a jagged reef of coral rock, the N. E. point of Glover's Reef, latitude 16° 54' N., longitude 87° 42' 8 sec. W. Two passengers attempted to cut away the boat, but were dissuaded by a revolver, and the most rigid discipline was maintained. At sunrise we discovered a small key, covered with cocoanut trees, bearing S. S. W., distant sixteen miles, to which I dispatched the mate and four men in our only boat with two days' rations, to seek assistance. We then got overboard, (having beaten into four feet water,) and went to work to construct a catamaran, or raft, capable of taking off all hands. By noon the next day, (Thursday 17th,) we had, by securely lashing spars across empty water-casks made a very strong and buoyant raft, which would hold all hands (112) together with a week's provisions and water. The passengers worked cheerfully, most of them being in the surf twelve hours at a time. At 4 P. M., just after having completed our raft, we descried a sail beating up inside the reef for us, which proved to be the schooner Wasp, of eight tons burden, belonging to a family of turtle fishers who inhabit Middle Key on this reef. They had been brought to our assistance by Mr. CARR, the 1st officer, whom I had sent off in our boat. We immediately commenced freighting the Wasp with provisions and men, no easy task, as everything had to be transported through the surf. The men were embarked in canoes, without confusion, each stepping over the rail as his name was called.

This day we succeeded in sending off about 50, in charge of Col. ANDERSON, with some of the Susan's sails, wherewith to construct tents on the Key. They were safely and expeditiously landed, and the Wasp sent back for more. This was continued until to-day, (21st,) when the last man was landed without accident. You will observe, by comparing dates, that the last party was on the wreck nearly six days, exposed to the surf, which constantly broke over them, and they were for the last 30 hours without food or water. As commander of the vessel it was my duty and my privilege to be the last to leave her; so, when every soul had been taken off, I took my flag and papers, and left in a canoe for the Wasp, where I was received with three hearty cheers from our high-spirited and undaunted passengers. Upon our arrival at Middle Key we found a feast prepared for us by our friends in advance, and did ample justice to the conch soup, fried plantains, yams, coffee, &c., which were set forth to regale us.

To the steadiness and good conduct of the passengers under these trying circumstances we must attribute the extraordinary good fortune of having lost no lives. I had no crew nor officers belonging to the vessel, all having deserted the night we left Mobile, and the vessel was worked entirely by volunteers from among the passengers. They all seconded my efforts, and submitted to my authority without a murmur.

We are all now in good health, encamped in a grove of cocoanut trees, feasting and making merry over past hardships, and the knowledge that not a life has been lost in a great measure consoles me for the chagrin of having lost my vessel.

To-morrow Col. ANDERSON and myself will proceed in our small boat to Belize, Honduras, for the purpose of chartering a vessel to convey our party to their original port of destination.

Accompanying this letter you will find a chart of the reef on which we were wrecked, and an abstract of our log.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
HARRY MAURY.

ON BOARD H. M. S. BASILISK, CARIBBEAN SEA, Dec. 28, 1858.

To the Owners of the Susan:

GENTLEMEN: In my last letter I wrote you that Col. FRANK ANDERSON and myself were about to go to Belize for assistance. After a passage of two days, in which we narrowly escaped swamping in a gale, and were entirely without food, we arrived at Belize on the morning of the 24th inst. Upon our arrival, we went to the office of an American merchant, (formerly our Consul,) named C. HEMPSTED, who readily assisted us in our efforts to charter a vessel to convey my passengers to their port of destination. We finally succeeded in effecting an arrangement with a Mr. HENDERSIDE, the owner of the brig Kate, GOODSPEED master, but no sooner had we made the agreement, than Capt. GOODSPEED refused to go in the vessel if she took us. He said that he had been in New-Orleans when we left Mobile, and knew all about our fighting the revenue-cutter, and subsequent escape, and in short, gave such an account of my passengers that we were unable to procure any vessel for love or money, as Capt. GOODSPEED assured every one that we would certainly seize any craft we got on board of, and run away with her. Thus you see, our only obstacle was an American shipmaster, trading between Rattan Island, Belize and New-Orleans. Capt. BATES, of the American bark Honduras, kindly offered a passage to New-York to Col. ANDERSON, myself, officers and crew of the Susan; but of course we refused to accept any proposition which did not include all hands. The whole town was soon in commotion; merchants hurrying to and fro, eyeing us as they passed, with mingled curiosity and distrust. New-Orleans papers were in demand; and as they had dates up to the 13th inst., they soon (assisted by the wretch GOODSPEED) possessed every particular of our departure from the States.

While we were in this unpleasant dilemma, His Excellency, the Hon. FREDERICK SEYMOUR, Governor of the Bay Islands, sent to request me to call at the Government House, which I did with many misgivings. He received me with great courtesy and kindness of manner, asking, with a smile, if I was the master of the famous Susan, of Mobile. On receiving an answer in the affirmative, he inquired, with an appearance of interest, into the condition of the passengers, and if any arrangements had been made for their relief. As soon as he was made aware of the awkward turn matters had taken through the officiousness of GOODSPEED, he remarked, that if we could do no better, and should desire to return to the United States, he would offer us a passage in Her Majesty's steam-sloop Basilisk, six guns, Captain PHAYRE, and gave me an hour to look around and consider upon it. As I was taking leave, he inquired kindly after the fate of Lieutenant WHITE, and seemed pleased to learn that he had been sent back in the ship Oregon. He then remarked that, as to who we were, and what might have been our original intentions, he chose not to inquire; that we had violated no law of England, and he regarded us simply as shipwrecked citizens of a power with which his Government desired to cultivate the most friendly relations; and said that he would assist us to the extent of his means.

After consulting with Colonel ANDERSON, and making some further unavailing efforts to help ourselves, we accepted, in proper terms, the very liberal offer of His Excellency, thanking him warmly, in the name of the passengers, for the prompt and kind manner in which he came forward to our assistance when it was really so much needed. No sooner had we made known, through Mr. HEMPSTEAD, our acceptance of the proposition, than the latter received the following note:

DEC. 24, 1858.

MY DEAR SIR: I shall start for Glover's Reef in H. M. S. Basilisk at 2½ o'clock this afternoon, and shall be happy to give a passage to Captain MAURY and those who accompanied him to Belize, if they will call at the Government House at that hour. The Basilisk will proceed to Mobile with the wrecked American citizens after dropping me at Key Bokel.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) FREDERICK SEYMOUR.

C. HEMPSTEAD, Esq.

In 15 minutes the Basilisk fired a gun and hoisted the "Blue Peter," a signal for "all boats and officers." Smoke was soon issuing from her chimneys, and at 3 P. M. we were gaily steaming out from Belize, with the British ensign floating over us—a novelty to some of us. Captain PHAYRE, Mr. BROADRICK, the First Lieutenant, and, in fact, every officer in the ship, seemed determined to make us forget our troubles and endeavored to anticipate all our wants; and their courtesies were shown to those who will not readily forget them.

About 2 P. M. on the 25th (Christmas) we anchored at Southwest Key, and Captain PHAYRE, accompanied by Governor SEYMOUR, Lieutenant HOLMES, Secretary to his Excellency, Colonel ANDERSON and myself, proceeded in the gig to Middle Key, on which our men were encamped, distant about four and a half miles N. N. E. The boys met us on the beach, very curious at the sight of the ensign flying in the stern of our boat, and as soon as they recognized Colonel ANDERSON in the boat, testified their joy by prolonged cheering. Governor SEYMOUR requested ANDERSON and myself to step ashore, and explain to the passengers the position of affairs, while he, Captain PHAYRE and Mr. HOLMES remained in the boat. A few moments sufficed to acquaint them with what was going on; after which they were drawn up, and were offered by his Excellency a passage home in the Basilisk, at the same time assuring them that they were free to do as they chose, and that if they went on board, he desired them particularly to understand that they were there in the sacred character of guests. The boys responded with three cheers for Governor SEYMOUR, and three more for the Captain and officers of the Basilisk. His Excellency then proceeded to ascertain if the islanders had aught to complain of in our conduct, and if there had been lack of hospitality on their part towards us. No complaint was made on either side, as our men had not broken a cocoanut without paying for it, and the islanders had been as kind as they could be. After careful inquiries into our comfort, the Governor, with Captain PHAYRE and their party, returned to the ship. The same evening we sent off in the ship's boat most of the stores we had saved, and on Sunday, 26th, embarked all hands for home.

Next morning (27th) landed the Governor at Key Bokel, and got under way for Mobile; since which the entire officers and crew, from the captain to the cook, have been most untiring in their attentions; and we are, barring our disappointment, more comfortable now than at any time since we left home.

Before leaving Belize, I appointed Mr. HEMPSTEAD agent to settle up the affairs of the wreck, instructing him to be liberal in his compensation to those who saved us, and to take care of whatever may be useful saved from the wreck. From his well-known character and position, as well as his friendliness and intelligence, we are extremely fortunate in having our affairs left in his hands.

In justice to myself, I request that you, as the other owners of the Susan, will take pains to ascertain from those who were on board, the circumstances attending and causing her loss.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
HARRY MAURY.

Additional to the above, we have to remark that we have conversed freely with the men who went out on the Susan, and they have invariably borne testimony to the seamanship of Captain MAURY, and to his coolness and management in emergencies. They all seem to love to speak well of him in every particular. They also speak in high praise of the treatment they received on board H. M. S. Basilisk.

They have returned to Mobile with empty purses, many of them, and are deficient in necessary clothing for the season in this climate. But their own fellow-citizens will not be less kind to them than our English cousins. Indeed, we have no thought that to-day will be permitted to pass over without their comforts being attended to, notwithstanding there may be some here who regard them as robbers and pirates, and unworthy of any aid and comfort from our citizens. We are sure there are many of our citizens attribute to them more exalted aims than those of mere rapine and plunder, and will promptly see to the relief of any distress which may have overtaken these men in consequence of the disastrous shipwreck which has befallen them. We know there are some who regard their cause, in some sort their own. We remember that a band of Nicaraguan deserters once fell, in like distressed circumstances, upon the mercies of the Northern people, and their comforts were attended to. Our own city will surely not be behind in providing for the immediate wants of these men, who, whatever else they may have been, have been brave and true to their purposes.

We were a little surprised, after so serious a mishap, and so complete a miscarriage, to hear them, almost to a man, express a wish—a determination, rather—to return. We hardly think there are half-a-dozen would decline to set out again to-day, were the opportunity to offer.

The Basilisk is of the burden of 980 tons, and of 400 horse power, and has a complement of 165 men. She will remain in our bay until Friday next.

All the Nicaraguans, both officers and men, speak in the warmest terms of the courtesy and attention with which they were treated by Capt. PHAYRE and the officers of the Basilisk, without exception. Our citizens, we are sure, will vie with each other in reciprocating the attentions they have shown to the unfortunate adventurers. This, we understand, is Capt. PHAYRE's first visit to the United States and we hope he will have cause to congratulate himself that his first impressions of the country were derived from his experience of the hospitalities of Mobile.

Important and Interesting Trial.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—JAN. 10.

Before Judge Ingersoll.

Henry E. Dibblee et al., vs. James F. Furniss et al.—This suit is brought by the plaintiffs, merchants in this City, against the defendants, auctioneers in Philadelphia, to recover the value of certain silks. It may be recollected that something over a year ago one George E. Parmlee, who occupied the store in the story above the plaintiffs' store at No. 25 Murray-street, was arrested, charged with having taken silks from the plaintiffs' store, into which he had obtained an entry through the skylight. Parmlee was indicted, but has never been tried. The plaintiffs' now bring this action of trover against the defendants for their silks sent to them for sale by Parmlee, under the name of Sylvanus Outchout, amounting to about $17,000.

This suit was commenced in the Supreme Court of this State, and thence removed to this Court by the defendants. They claim that the goods were sent to them in the usual course of business, and nothing to put them upon suspicion, and that they are therefore not liable.

The remarkable feature in the cause was the appearance of Mr. Parmlee himself as a witness for the plaintiffs in the cause. He gave the whole history of his depredations, amounting to about $40,000 and extending over a period of nearly three years. He described the manner of his operations in taking the goods by going down through the skylight, and in disposing of the goods to the defendants and others. His bearing on the stand was perfectly cool and undisturbed, and he gave all the details with a frankness and coolness which betokened either an insensibility or a stoicism equally remarkable.

Being asked by defendants' counsel what led him into the matter, he said he supposed the ways into crime were generally similar; that the need of money for his business, the opportunity occasioned by the breaking of a light of glass in the skylight, and a feeling of anger occasioned by ill treatment received from the plaintiffs, had led him to take the goods.

Other actions are also pending for other goods. This case is still on.

For plaintiffs, Mr. Evarts and Mr. Stanley.
For defendants, Mr. O'Conor.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM—JAN. 10.

THE LAGER-BIER THEATRES—INJUNCTION.

Managers of the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents in the City of New-York vs. Chas. P. Eustachi.—The defendant in this action was the proprietor and manager of "The New-Yorker Volks Theatre," situated at Nos. 515, 517 and 519 Fourth-street, in this City. This theatre took out a license on one occasion since it opened, and paid the license fee, which is $250 every six months. The defendant refused to take out any license for the past six months, and the plaintiffs bring suit, as the license-money which is collected from the various theatres throughout the City, goes into the hands of the above Society for the benefit of the Institution. The defendant denied that his establishment in Fourth-street was a theatre within the meaning of the statute, but alleged in his answer that the main object to him in giving theatrical exhibitions was to enable him the more advantageously to sell and dispose of refreshments, liquors and cigars. He further alleged that all who visited his theatre paid an admission-fee of 10 cents, for which they received a ticket which entitled the holder thereof to a glass of lager-bier.

Isaac Schneiltacher, the principal witness for the plaintiffs, testified that he had on several occasions been present at the building in Fourth-street, called the New-Yorker Volks Theatre; the interior of the building was, on those occasions, fitted up for theatrical performances, with a regular raised stage, drop curtain, side-scenes, foot-lights, and such other arrangements as are usual in theatres where theatrical performances are exhibited; on the evening of the 13th day of June, 1858, he saw exhibited to the public, on the stage of the theatre, by actors and actresses, dressed in costume adapted to the character of the piece, a theatrical performance in the German language, consisting of a play in five acts, called, as translated into the English, "The Magic Cup;" on the 14th day of June, 1858, he saw exhibited to the public, on the said premises, another piece or play in five acts, entitled "The Memoirs of the Devil; or, The Secrets of Rongueroller;" on the 16th day of June, 1858, he saw exhibited to the public another play, in four acts, and called "People Without Money; or, The Uncle from America;" at each performance he purchased at the door a ticket of admission, for which he paid ten cents, which ticket entitled him to witness the performance and to receive a glass of lager bier worth four cents; the defendant, Charles S. Eustachi, was the proprietor and manager of the New-Yorker Volks Theatre, and his name was advertised by him as the director or manager of the said Theatre or performances, in a German newspaper published in the City of New-York, called the New-Yorker Demokrat.

The defendant was called as a witness in his own behalf, and testified that the material facts set up in his answer were true.

Being cross-examined, he testified that he had kept the place since the third day of May, 1857, on which date the building was just finished and new; during all the time he had kept the place, the performances had always been of the same character and nature; he always advertised the performances given at his place in the German newspapers, the Demokrat and the Staats Zeitung;" during the first year that he kept the place, he took out a license for a theatre; that license expired on the first day of May, 1858; a ticket was shown to the witness, and he testified that it was a ticket for a performance given at his place, for the benefit of Mrs. Schaumberg; three printed programmes were then shown to the defendant, and he testified that they were programmes or play-bills of the performances given by him, prepared for and used by the audience; that at one end of his hall there was a bar; there was a partition between the bar and the hall where the performances were given; there was no bar in the hall where the stage was; the hall was filled with benches and tables for the audience; the price of lager-bier at the bar was four or five cents a glass; in the room where the performances were given, there was nothing but the stage, and the benches and tables for the audience; some of the actors were volunteers, and some were paid; the price of lager-bier inside of the room where the performances were given was ten cents for one glass, and then five cents for every subsequent glass; witness had a regular carte, or bill of fare, like a restaurant, so that anything to eat might be obtained.

The Court, on this evidence, rendered judgment for the plaintiffs, in accordance with the relief asked: that a perpetual injunction may issue, restraining the defendant from opening his theatre for the exhibition of theatrical performances, without first taking out his license.

The same against Rhinehart & Reimer, proprietors of the Volks Garden. Judgment for the plaintiffs the same as in previous case.

H. A. Crain for plaintiffs; Jas. McGay for defendant.

Before Justice Roosevelt.

Ames vs. Hulburt et al.—This was an action brought by a judgment creditor of Hurlbut & Co. to set aside transfers of their interest in two vessels, the ship Elizabeth Denniston, and the bark Mayflower, and obtain satisfaction of plaintiff's judgment by a sale. The cause was chiefly litigated between the judgment creditor and the assignees.

On the trial, the plaintiff, having proved his judgment and execution, and Hurlbut & Co.'s interest in the vessels, rested; and assignees' counsel moved a dismissal of the complaint. They offered no evidence to prove the transfers to themselves, nor to show the consideration of the transfers, if any were made.

Held—by the Court—that on this state of the case plaintiff was entitled to recover.

The counsel for the assignees seemed to suppose that the legal effect of the pleadings was to dispense with any proof on his part. Under the old Chancery practice, if an averment made in the bill was denied in the answer, the denial was treated as equivalent to the testimony of a witness. But under the Code a sworn denial merely creates an issue, to be tried in the same manner as if unsworn. The oath is the required evidence of the good faith of the party, and not of the truth of the plea. Each party on the trial is allowed to avail himself of the admissions and omissions of his adversary, but not of his own averments, responsive or otherwise. In the present case the complaint only alleged as reason for making the assignees parties, that they claimed some interest in the subject; but so far from admitting their claims, the complaint avers them to be "unfounded and untrue." And in the absence of all proof to explain or sustain them, they must be regarded in that light by the Court. No rule requires the plaintiff, after having made out his own title, to proceed and overthrow that of his adversary. Judgment for plaintiff, according to the principles of the opinion. Form to be settled on notice.

Fancher & Eager for plaintiff; Miller, Pelt & Nichols, for the assignees; Chas. Nettleton for other defendants.

Brewster vs. The New-England Jewelry Company.—Demurrer overruled. Judgment for plaintiff, absolute.

Large Claim to Property in Cuba.

J. Manuel Phinney, Jas. A. West and Mary D. West his wife, and Susan Phinney vs. Theodore W. Phinney, and Ann W. Phinney—Demurrer to a complaint.

The case made by the complaint in this action was substantially as follows:

It was alleged that one Theodore Phinney, a resident of the Island of Cuba, died in April, 1852; that at the time of his death he owned a large quantity of real estate and slaves, the total value of his possessions being about half a million of dollars in American currency; that on his death he left a widow, the defendant, Ann W. Phinney, and four children, to wit: J. Manuel Phinney, Mary D. West, Susan Phinney and Theodore W. Phinney; that, by the laws of Spain, the widow became entitled to one-half undivided share of the estate, and the plaintiffs to one-eighth part of such possessions; that, by the laws of Spain, the widow became, and now is the sole executrix of the deceased, and as such, by herself and her agents, controlled and managed said estate, and became responsible for the avails and proceeds thereof.

The plaintiffs further alleged that the said Ann W. Phinney, upon the decease of her husband, employed one R. Dorringh as her attorney and agent, but that in the year 1853 she removed the said Dorringh and employed the co-defendant, Theodore W. Phinney, as her agent in his stead; that Theodore W. Phinney has been from time to time permitted and allowed to take upon himself the exclusive control of such estate, without any interference by Mrs. Phinney; that Theodore W. Phinney, with the connivance of his co-defendant, has so mismanaged the estate that the full value of its proceeds and the slave-labor has not been obtained therefrom, to the damage of complainants of about $50,000. That said T. W. Phinney, with the connivance and consent of the widow, did wrongfully receive large sums of money from out of the estate, and convert the same to his own use, such sums being more than the said T. W. Phinney was entitled to as his share of the estate as one of the children of the deceased. That such larger amount so taken amounts to a still further sum of $50,000, to the injury of the plaintiffs. That Phinney, also, in fraud of the plaintiffs' rights, did take to himself the proceeds of the labor of the negroes of the estate. That he also built an expensive mansion, and took possession of some sixty acres of land without warrant or authority, and with intent to defraud the plaintiffs. That the value of said lands and mansion is about $40,000.

The complaint prayed that an account, under the direction of the Court, might be taken of the possessions of the deceased and of the income received by the defendants, which, by their neglect, has not reached the hands of the complainants, and also of all the proceeds derived and to be derived from the estate; and that a receiver might be appointed to take control of such possessions, with the usual powers. And the complainants further asked that the defendants might be removed from any further management of the said estate; that the defendants might be ordered to convey all the undisposed-of property to the said receiver, and that the costs of this action be paid by the defendants.

To this complaint the defendants demurred, principally on the following grounds:

1. That the Court has no jurisdiction of the person of either of the defendants.

2. That it has no jurisdiction of the subject of this action.

3. Because several causes of action have been improperly united in the complaint. The complaint contains twenty-one different alledged causes of action. Eight of them against Theodore W. Phinney for negligence, fraud, wrongfully misapplying the monies and the labor of the slaves belonging to the estate for his own use and benefit; not rendering proper and sufficient accounts of the estate; detaining a large portion of the shares of the plaintiffs in the income and produce of the estate; keeping to his own use sixty acres of the decedent's land; wrongfully taking a certain mansion or dwelling-house; and for an account as executor de son tort. These eight causes of action are not separately stated, do not affect the defendant Ann B. Phinney, and do not all belong to any one of the seven classes of actions defined by section 167. That the causes against Ann W. Phinney were thirteen in number, and all united in one complaint.

4. That the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause or action. 1. It did not appear that the Courts of Cuba cannot afford an adequate remedy to the plaintiffs. 2. It did not appear that there are any assets of the estate within the jurisdiction of the Court. 3. It did not appear that Ann B. Phinney has received or retains more than her aliquot proportion of the estate. 4. It did appear that the parties to this suit are tenants in common with respect to its subject matter. Again, this Court has no jurisdiction to decree the sale of land in Cuba. Such a decree would be brutum fulmen. The Court would have no power to enforce it. It being in rem, and its subject matter being beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the Court, it would be nugatory for want of power to give it effect. The complaint therefore fails to state a cause of action against the defendants or either of them.

The argument on the demurrer, was commenced this morning, J. T. Williams for plsintiff, and Clarence Seward, for the defendants.

Before the Hon. Justice Sutherland.

DECISIONS.

Edmond W. Kingsland vs. William B. Morse.—Motion for appointment of receiver denied without costs to either party.

Same vs. Same.—Motion to dissolve injunction granted.

THE AUSTRIAN BANK NOTE CASE.

In re. Henry Rohner—Some time since Henry Rohner was committed for trial, by a police justice, on a charge of having in his possession, knowing them to be bogus, a number of counterfeit notes on the Austrian National Bank.

Mr H. L. Clinton, for the accused, now asked his discharge on habeas corpus, on the ground that the testimony before the Police Justice did not show any crime under the laws of the State. The statute made it felony to forge the handwriting of Bank officers, but was silent respecting such facts as were shown here. The notes in question were genuine in form, but the prisoner had not signed or subscribed any name of any person whatever to them.

J. Larocque opposed the discharge. Decision reserved.

CIRCUIT.

Before Judge Davies.

The day calendar was called through this morning, but no causes being ready, the Court adjourned at an early hour.

The suit against the New-York, Newfoundland and London Telegraph Company, mentioned in the TIMES, of Friday, Jan. 7, which was to have been tried to-day, has been settled.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Chief Justice Bosworth.

Black vs. Carney.—The order made in this case was announced in Monday's TIMES. The action was brought to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent as against creditors. In 1857 William Carney conveyed a house and lot to John Carney. According to John Carney's testimony, he purchased the property for $5,250, subject to a mortgage for $2,400, which he agreed to pay as part of the price. John and William were both examined as witnesses, but neither of them were able to state with precision how the rest of the contract price was paid, nor how much was left unpaid. It appeared, however, that a considerable sum was left to be paid out of the future rents and profits of the premises.

Held, that the conveyance must be presumed to have been made with intent to delay and defraud the plaintiff and other creditors of William Carney, and that it must pronounced fraudulent and void as to them, and they were entitled to judgment to that effect, with the usual directions. Judgment to be settled on two days' notice by either party. Costs to plaintiff.

COMMON PLEAS—CHAMBERS.

Coppinger vs. Shufeldt. Palmer vs. Myers. Stephens vs. Albert. Carey vs. Thompson. Cases settled.

MARINE COURT.

Before Justice Thompson.

Barnes and Park vs. Jas. and Erastus Brooks.—This action was brought for a breach of an agreement of lease between the plaintiffs and defendants. The plaintiffs by the agreement alleged, let to the defendants the premises on Park-row, wherein the Express is now published. One of the stipulations in the agreement was, that the Messrs. Brooks should pay the extra premiums which might be charged for insurance in consequence of the building being used for a printing establishment. It is alleged that defendants have not paid these extra charges; and this suit was brought to recover for them.

Yesterday the testimony of several insurance officers was taken by deposition to prove the amounts paid. This morning, there being no counsel in attendance for defendants, an inquest was taken, and verdict rendered for the amount claimed.

We understand that a motion will be made to vacate these proceedings and allow defendants to put in their defence.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Judge Russell.

Considerable business was transacted yesterday in this Court. Edward Hempson, charged with burglary in the third degree, in breaking into the store of Asa Stephens, at No. 78 Wooster-street, on Dec. 20, was first placed at the bar for trial. There was property in the store valued at several thousand dollars, but the defendant (who was in company with two others, who escaped) had not time—before the alarm was given, and he was arrested—to remove anything. The evidence not fully substantiating the full charge, the District-Attorney was willing to receive a verdict of guilty of an attempt at burglary in the third degree, which was, accordingly, rendered. On account of his youth, the prisoner was sentenced to the Penitentiary for one year only.

Charles McDermott, aged 18 years, indicted for the murder of Carson Carter, on Nov. 17, was called on trial. The District-Attorney said that, after a close examination of the papers in the case, he did not think the evidence sufficiently clear to warrant a trial for murder, and would be satisfied if the prisoner would plead guilty to manslaughter in the second degree. The defendant so pleaded. Sentence deferred.

Roosevelt Hovey was tried and convicted on a charge of grand larceny and sentenced to two years in the State Prison.

James Donnelly, indicted for burglary in the second degree, pleaded guilty to that crime in the third degree, and was sentenced to the State Prison for two years.

Philip Hart was convicted of burglary in the third degree, in breaking into the store of William Clinchey, No. 174 East Seventeenth-street, on Nov. 14, and stealing therefrom a chest of tea. Sentenced to 2 years in the Penitentiary.

James Kenney and Peter Murray, mere youths, were convicted of burglary in the third degree, in breaking into the store of Charles E. Miller, No. 5 Chatham-square, on Dec. 22. Sentenced to 3 years and 6 months each in the State Prison.

John Duggan, aged 19, jointly indicted with the boy Hart, pleaded guilty to an attempt at burglary in the third degree. As he was an old offender he was sentenced to two years in the State Prison.

Thomas Briggs, aged 22, was convicted of burglary in the third degree. He broke into the store of Mr. Friedmann, No. 296 Grand-street, on Dec. 28, and stole $50 worth of goods. He was sentenced to 4 years and 3 months in the State Prison.

William Brown, a boy, pleaded guilty to petit larceny, and was sent to the Penitentiary for four months.

John Miller, indicted for forgery in the second degree, pleaded guilty to that offence in the fourth degree, and was remanded for sentence.

Louis Miller, indicted for burglary in the first degree, pleaded guilty to the third degree, and, being an old offender, was sentenced to the State Prison for four years and nine months.

John Rahn, confederate of the above, and indicted with him, pleaded guilty in the same manner and was similarly sentenced.

Jane Martin, a young servant girl, pleaded guilty to petit larceny. She was indicted for grand larceny, having stolen dresses, valued at $82, from her mistress. At the recommendation of that lady she was sent to the House of Refuge.

Mary Fallen pleaded guilty to grand larceny, in stealing coats, &c., and was sent, for two years, to the Penitentiary.

The case of Harmon Fasting, for receiving stolen goods, was called on. Ex-Judge A. A. Phillips for defence. It will be resumed this morning.

A Large Land Claim—Interesting Sketch of a California Adventurer.

From the Boston Journal.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Jan. 6, 1859.

The public will be interested in a brief sketch of the triangular case of the United States vs. JOHN A. SUTTER, which has been occupying the attention of the Supreme Court, and in which the concluding argument has been to-day made by General BUTLER, of Lowell.

SUTTER is a well-known resident of California. He is by birth a Swiss, and, having received a military education, he entered the "Swiss Guard" of CHARLES X. of France, as a commissioned officer. When that branch of the Bourbon family was overthrown SUTTER fled from France, and came to the United States. In 1837 a restless spirit of adventure led him to California, the northern frontier of which was then an almost impassable wilderness, uninhabited except by roving bands of warlike and hostile Indians.

In the midst of this wilderness SUTTER settled—he erected a fort and planted cannon—he built houses and workshops, a grist-mill and a tannery—he had thousands of horses and cattle—he overawed the Indians into peace and friendliness, and taught them to till the ground, of which he had square miles under cultivation. His establishment soon became known, and it became a resting place for Americans crossing the country. SUTTER received and treated all comers with almost unbounded hospitality.

When in the Fall of 1844 Generals CASTRO and PIO PICO revolted against the lawful Governor, MICHELTORENA, SUTTER (who was at that time a captain in the Mexican army) raised at his own expense a company of over 200 men and marched to the assistance of MICHELTORENA. MICHELTORENA was defeated and obliged to flee the country, and SUTTER was taken a prisoner of war. CASTRO, who was then declared Governor, released SUTTER after a short detention, and sent him back to his establishment. From this time, although wearing an appearance of outward friendship, CASTRO and SUTTER looked upon each other with mutual distrust and suspicion.

CASTRO endeavored to have SUTTER driven from the country, and SUTTER, to protect himself, gathered about his fort a large body of emigrants. CASTRO incited the hostile Indians to attack the fort, and he himself proclaimed the opening of hostilities by ordering all strangers in the neighborhood of the fort to leave the country. At this time, Col. FREMONT opportunely arrived at the fort. He was himself in great danger of an attack. After some deliberation, the United States flag was raised, and the first steps were taken which made California one of the States of this Union. It was in SUTTER'S mill-race that the first discovery of gold in California was subsequently made.

At the time SUTTER first made his settlement, land was of no value, and could be had by the square league almost for the asking. After California became a part of the United States, land became valuable, and Congress passed an act providing for the appointment of a Land Commissioner for the settlement of land claims.

Before this Land Commissioner, SUTTER filed his claim for 33 square leagues of land. He claimed eleven leagues by a grant which he asserted was made in 1841 by Gov. ALVARADO, and twenty-two leagues by a grant made in 1845 by Gov. MICHELTORENA, as a reward for his extraordinary services in endeavoring to sustain the power of that Governor. The Land Commission allowed the claim, and thence the case has come to the Supreme Court by appeal on the part of the United States. Nor is it to be wondered at that the case excites great interest, as it is said that if allowed to its full extent, and properly located, the claim will be worth $20.000,000, and will include within its bounds two large cities.

The result of the case is, however, of little importance to Gen. SUTTER, as the whole claim is probably in the hands of speculators, and beyond his reach.

One of the questions which has come before the Supreme Court is where the land in question shall be located? the claim being a floating one within certain limits. Upon this there is a conflict between the counsel representing Gen. SUTTER. Messrs. JOHN J. CRITTENDEN and ROBERT J. WALKER appeared in the name of SUTTER for those who bought land of the speculators under SUTTER'S title in and about the city of Sacramento; while Messrs. B. F. BUTLER and N. ST. JOHN GREEN, of Massachusetts, appeared for SUTTER and those who have settled upon the lands, upon which it is endeavored by the speculators to locate this grant.

Mr. CRITTENDEN, upon the opening of the argument, made a motion that both sections of the counsel appearing for SUTTER should not be heard, but after a brief discussion the Court decided to hear both Mr. CRITTENDEN and Mr. BUTLER, for SUTTER. Then Mr. CRITTENDEN moved that Mr. WALKER might come in to assist him, and the Court permitted it. The Government contends that both grants are invalid, and that the boundaries are uncertain, and that therefore the land cannot be located at all.

Such is a resumé of this important case, gleaned from my notes of Messrs. BUTLER and CRITTENDEN'S able arguments, and the motions of opposing counsel which I have heard. It is by far the most important case which has come before the Court this session, and excites much interest among the Californians here, some of whom own valuable property, the title of which is involved. The amount of land in dispute is three times greater than FREMONT'S claim, and if the grant is confirmed, it will divert from the Treasury more money than has ever yet gone out of it on a single claim.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The most important business transacted by the United States Senate yesterday was the passage of the French Spoliation bill, by a vote of 26 to 20, after elaborate speeches by Mr. DAVIS against it, and Mr. CRITTENDEN in its favor. Senator DOUGLAS appeared and took his seat for the first time during the session. Mr. IVERSON of Georgia introduced a bill to abolish the franking privilege, which was referred to the Post-Office Committee. The Military Academy Appropriation bill was passed, and some other business of no general interest was transacted. In the House, Mr. BARKSDALE of Mississippi offered a preamble and resolution, which were adopted, relative to the reports in foreign papers to the effect that the Governments of France and England have given notice that the cession of Cuba to the United States will not be tolerated, even with the consent of Spain, and asking the President for all correspondence on the subject. The House refused to consent to the introduction, by Mr. HARRIS, of Maryland, of a joint resolution requesting the President to interfere in the case of the boy MORTARA. The Indian Appropriation bill was then perfected in Committee of the Whole, and laid aside to be reported to the House, after which the Committee proceeded to the consideration of the President's Message, the debate taking a wide range, and including the Old Soldiers' Pension bill; our Spanish relations and the Cuban question; Central American affairs and the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty; the Democratic Party as an oligarchy, and the organ and representatives of the slave propagandists; Popular Sovereignty and the right of Congress to legislate for the territories, and the dangers besetting the Republican Party. Finally the Committee rose, and the House, after passing the Indian Appropriation bill, adjourned.

The State Legislature was in session again last evening—the Senate having assembled at 7 P. M., and the Assembly at 4 P. M. In the Senate, the President announced the Standing Committees, and very little else was done. In the Assembly, a petition was presented for increased compensation to the Judges of the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court, and another for the amendment of the Emigrant laws so as to relieve counties. A remonstrance was presented from the people of Brooklyn, against closing the tunnel in Atlantic-street. Among the bills, notice of intention to introduce which was given, was one to provide for the compensation to jurors in New-York. A bill was introduced to authorize the Common Council of New-York to appoint one hundred additional Commissioners of Deeds; also one to repeal the law authorizing the parties to suits to be witnesses. After the consideration of the Governor's Message in Committee of the Whole, and the transaction of some other unimportant business, the Assembly adjourned.

The Mexican intelligence contained in our New-Orleans dispatch of the 8th inst., is confirmed by further advices. The revolution at the City of Mexico, which resulted in the overthrow of ZULOAGA, took place on Dec. 23. Gen. ECHEGARAY, already known to favor the fortunes of Gen. ROBLES, had advanced upon the Capital, seized ZULOAGA, tried him and sentenced him to death, a fate he only escaped by the intervention of a momentary counter movement. The Ex-Dictator had taken shelter beneath the British flag. Gen. ROBLES, it was understood, would at once reinstate President JUAREZ at the Seat of Government. The President's Message was the subject of much hostile discussion.

Our dates from the Rio Grande are to Dec. 29. A large number of Texan families had received permission from Gen. VIDAURRI to settle in Nuevo Leon. Gen. VIDAURRI has just had a conference with Gen. GARZA, which has ended in an alliance defensive of the States of Tamaulipas, Nuevo Leon and Coahuila, against the reactionists of the South.

The State Prison Inspectors have made a report upon the case of the convict MOORE, who died recently from the effects of the punishment of the shower-bath in Auburn State Prison. The Inspectors exculpate the officers of the Prison from blame for intentional recklessness or cruelty; but, in view of the danger attending the use of the shower-bath as a means of punishment, have directed its discontinuance.

The brig Oregon, Capt. RICE, went ashore in Boston Bay upon Cohasset Rocks, on Sunday night, and became a total loss. One man was washed overboard and drowned. By the Cape Cod telegraph, the Secretary of the Board of Underwriters yesterday received intelligence that the schooner L. C. Watts, from Cuba for Boston, had gone ashore on Guy Head, and had bilged; also that two other Boston-bound vessels had arrived at Holmes' Hole in distress.

A strike for wages has taken place on the Chicago and St. Louis Railroad, the employes of which have received no pay for six months. Two trains were stopped yesterday, and the passengers were obliged to return to their starting point. The strike causes considerable excitement along the road.

The Rev. THEODORE PARKER has been compelled, by ill-health, to resign his charge in Boston temporarily, and will leave for the West Indies. His congregation supply his place and continue his salary.

There were more frozen moustaches in New-York yesterday than were ever before seen since beards came into fashion, for Mr. MERIAM informs us that the weather has not been so cold in seventy years as it was at noon yesterday. We publish this morning a large number of cases of suffering by the intense cold, and, among them, one of an omnibus driver freezing to death on his seat.

The Board of Aldermen, last evening, after some debate, referred a communication from the Mayor, nominating Dr. S. C. FOSTER for City Inspector, to a Committee of five. Members of the Board predict that the Committee will not soon report. Meantime Mr. MORTON, the present incumbent, "holds over." A resolution prohibiting the sprinkling of salt, for the purpose of melting snow in the streets, was laid on the table. A petition from the American Institute asking for a lease of Reservoir-square was referred. The President announced the Standing Committees for 1859.

City Inspector MORTON denies having made any bargain with the Aldermen to keep him in office, and says he is ready to resign whenever his successor is appointed. Of course. It was not expected he would confess to having made a bargain.

The Rev. Dr. ADAMS delivered a lecture last evening in Cooper Institute before quite a numerous audience, on "Daily Wonders."

A report of proceedings against one of the lager bier theatres will be found under our head of Law Reports. Also, a notice of the argument of a cause involving the appointment of a receiver of the Phinney estate, valued at half a million of dollars, and chiefly situated in Cuba.

The annual meeting of the Marine Society of New-York, which was organized in 1770, took place last evening at the United States Hotel. Capt. JAMES COPELAND, the Treasurer of the Society, was presented with a piece of silver plate, as a testimonial of regard, from the Society. After electing their officers, the company partook of a supper at the hotel. According to the Treasurer's report, the finances of the Society are in an encouraging condition.

The Annual Festival of the Tammany Society took place last night at the Old Wigwam, and the occasion passed off with great spirit. Dancing, eating, speech-making and toasting filled up the time until a late hour. The company was numerous.

In the Court of General Sessions yesterday the time of the Court was mostly devoted to cases of burglary, a large number of which are on the Calendar of the present term. The Court sat late and did a great deal of business, disposing of no less than sixteen charges, and imposing sentences varying from one year in the Penitentiary to four years and nine months in the State Prison. There are four important murder cases which will shortly be tried, two of them probably during the present week.

Two female spiritual mediums, Mrs. CAROLINE HARTWELL, and Mrs. HARRIET SEYMOUR, were yesterday brought before Justice QUACKENBUSH on a charge of purloining a number of napkins from the boarding-house of the former. It was shown that they had wandered from their "spiritual" calling, and had meddled rather too freely with "material things," and they were required to give bail to reappear and answer the charge.

EDWARD WEST and WILLIAM MILLER were committed to the Tombs for knocking down FRANK WEBSTER, whom they had undertaken to pilot to a lodging-house in Cow Bay, and attempting to rob him of his clothing. They were promptly arrested by some Sixth Ward policemen and sent to the lock-up.

Two women, named JOHANNA VENT and CATHERINE RIDDLE, inmates of the dance-house No. 103 Washington-street, quarreled over an indigo bag last night. During the disturbance Miss VENT seized a butcher's knife and stabbed Miss RIDDLE in the left breast, inflicting a wound about one inch in depth. Miss VENT was arrested, and Miss RIDDLE was taken to the Hospital.

An inquest was yesterday held by Coroner JACKMAN upon the body of a boy six years of age who was so brutally beaten by his drunken father, JOHN BAMMAN, a few evenings ago that he died from the effects of his injuries. The inhuman father was committed to prison to await the action of the Grand Jury.

An inquest was held upon the body of an infant which had been strangled by its mother, MARIA KENNEDY, an Irish girl, who had been employed as nurse at No. 396 Bowery. She was committed to prison to answer the charge.

The body of an unknown woman was found floating in the East River near the foot of Fiftieth-street. From the dress upon the body, she was supposed to have been one of the inmates of the Penitentiary upon Blackwell's Island, who had committed suicide by drowning herself. An inquest will be held upon the body to-day.

A slight fire occurred in the billiard saloon attached to the Waverley Restaurant, at the corner of Broadway and Fourth-street. The damage was very slight.

The sales of Cotton, yesterday, did not exceed 1,000 bales, at languid prices. Flour, Wheat and Corn were more sought after, and were firmer. Pork and Cut meats were depressed. Lard, Beef, Sugars and Molasses were inquired for. Rice and Tobacco were rather quiet. St. Domingo Coffee, Common Resin and Linseed Oil were in demand. Freights were inactive.

Post-Office Reform.

The Postmaster-General is a melancholy monument of talents misapplied. He spent the past year in reducing to practice a scheme of overland mail-carriage, which has the novel advantage of costing for the transmission of a single letter from St. Louis to San Francisco, sixty-five dollars—the actual pay to the Department for the feat being ten cents. The immediate fruit of this achievement of business thrift, was the discovery that the Department was not "self-sustaining." To make it so, is the task to which the Postmaster proposes to devote himself this Winter; and the first results of his ingenuity, we are informed, are to be laid before Congress this week. Their general scope may, however, be anticipated. At present, we shall be told, there is a hiatus valdè deflendus in the resources of the Department, which is annually filled by drafts upon the Treasury. We shall be expected to experience a variety of emotions at this announcement; astonishment, alarm and anxiety for a remedy, which latter the Postmaster will proceed to prescribe in the form of an advance of the rates of postage to five cents, which, added to the two cents for City delivery, will make, if established, seven cents as the charges upon a letter weighing half an ounce. Congress will be recommended to pass a law in accordance with this proposition.

The idea of admitting common sense into the conduct of postal matters has become obsolete. There is, perhaps, no branch of business, however insignificant, that does not command a larger share of ability than this, upon which the well-being and comfort of millions are dependent. The very pedler has some general ideas of economy and some little shrewdness in the prosecution of his little commerce,—infinitely more in fact than falls to the lot of a Postmaster-General, as the world goes. It is of course useless to address to the Department any protest against its errors. The only hope is that Congress may have judgment enough to correct them. Congress may be able to answer why the State, the Navy, the War Departments should be equally self-sustaining, since Ministers and Consuls may embark advantageously in mercantile as well as diplomatic affairs, men of war may transport merchandise, and soldiers have all the muscular development requisite for digging potatoes. It may again be asked why this particular branch of the public service, which is robbed and defrauded without stint by every other, and which more directly than any other ministers to the welfare and convenience of the people, should be the only one denied access to the public Treasury? Possibly Congress may know; we cannot conceive.

Certain points in this business may be taken for granted, granting, to begin, that the Department ought to pay its own way.

1. If the cost of carrying the mails be thus flung off by Government, Government has no pretence whatever left for claiming the gratuitous carriage of its own mail matter. The abolition of the franking privilege is the first step, therefore, in any proposed reform.

2. The idea of a uniform rate of postage must be abandoned. If the office is to be self-supporting, justice requires the fair distribution of the burden of support among those enjoying its advantages. The rule to govern this distribution must be the cost of carriage, and as that depends generally upon distance traversed in the transportation, the rate should be proportioned to the distance.

3. The last-named principle becomes more imperative, when we remember that it is already partially admitted in the particular of weight; the service being, in reality, measured by the two elements of weight and distance.

4. With the admission of the proportion between amount of service and the amount of pay, the rates of postage under five hundred miles might be safely fixed at three cents for the half ounce, including City delivery; five cents for distances under one thousand miles, and sums increasing in the same ratio for increasing distances.

5. The sea-going service must be placed upon a separate basis, and its terms adapted to the necessities of the case.

It is needless to say that, with these provisions, the Department would soon cease to be a burden upon the Treasury, and so the millennium of Postmaster-Generals be attained. And while we can see no propriety whatever in that result, the amended system would have various advantages worth consideration. In a country so wide, and so sparsely settled as this, the English penny-postage is impracticable. The same facts tend to render the uniform rate inapplicable, and it would be well to abandon it. At present, the expenses of the Department are paid by a half-dozen States on the Atlantic, covering points between which correspondence is most frequent. It is high time this inequality should be corrected. The effect of discarding the absurdity of a uniform rate is obvious. It would not only equalize the system, but enlarge the resources of the office.

Lloyd on De Soto.

The right of petition is a most respectable right, certainly; and although it sometimes proves a sad annoyance to legislators in the discharge of their business or the carrying out of their policy, we should be sorry to see it tampered with, even in this land of "chartered libertines." But what are we to say or do in the case of such a petition as has just been presented by one Mr. J. T. LLOYD, a publisher, of Philadelphia, praying the American Congress to step into his snug little shop and buy a trifle of ten thousand volumes of a book just issued by him, the same to be distributed "among the various State libraries" of the nation? If anything in the way of human impudence could be amazing at this age of the world, certainly one might be stupefied into sheer silence by this extraordinary flight of financial enterprise. The book in question purports to contain the life of "FERDINAND DE SOTO, the discoverer of the Mississippi River;" and is described by its fond father, who, for aught that appears, is the writer as well as the publisher of his bantling, in the body of his petition. This document, as remarkable in the detail as in the general, and doubtless far more trite than the work for which it pleads, deserves a wide circulation in the United States, that we may be helped to some dim notion of what we are coming to under the sway of a headlong Congress and a shameless lobby.

The lively LLOYD, who is as learned as lively, assures us that we can nowhere else find "this interesting history of the Discovery of the Mississippi" as it is told in his entrancing pages. We quite believe him. His synopsis of contents reads like the sensation advertisement of a melodrama at the Bowery. "De Soto takes possession in an imposing manner of the whole land from Tampa Bay to the Belize;" "battles with ferocious Indian tribes;" "customs, religion and belief of the said ferocious tribes;" "extreme cruelty of the Spaniards to the poor Indians," "base poisoning of DE SOTO by his comrades;" "secret and silent sinking of DE SOTO's body in the mid Mississippi by his wicked followers;" "pursuit of the wretches by myriads of savages, and wholesale slaughter." Truly a tremendous and a touching story, invaluable to the ignorant muse of history, and to the "State libraries of the Union."

Perhaps, however, the reader would like to know why, in all this matter, Congress must be called upon to circulate a book so eminently calculated to circulate itself. The answer is easy—to LLOYD: Because about four years ago Congress was silly enough ("wise" enough, says Mr. LLOYD) to purchase for $10,000, a painting of the "Discovery of the Mississippi," by Mr. POWELL, which has astonished the weak-minded stranger in the Capitol Rotunda. We admit that Mr. LLOYD may find some lover for his brazen assurance, under this fact. That Congress should have done a stupendously foolish thing, offers a natural ground for hoping that it may do another more foolish still. But the nation at large may find less coherence in the argument than our "friend" of the fraternal city. And, although Mr. LLOYD kindly hints to the "members of both Houses" that they will "confer a benefit on their constituents" by buying wholesale, at $1 50 per copy, the noble work which "many" of the said members have already bought at retail for $2 50, the constituents themselves may possibly think the game hardly worth the candle, and decline buying the Pennsylvanian penny-whistle at the price of a grand Federal trumpet. Really, one hardly knows whether to treat such an affair as this seriously; and yet, in the face of past experience, who shall undertake to say that the thing will not come to a vote if, indeed, it be not absolutely passed into a fact? If we actually anticipated a result so scandalous, we should advocate the transfer of the appropriation from the resurrectionist of DE SOTO, the dead, to provide spangles, silk dresses and diamonds for Madamoiselle DE SOTO, who may, perhaps, be a descendant of the Cavalier so gayly depicted by the dramatic pencil of POWELL; so tragically described by the equally dramatic pen of LLOYD; and who is certainly a charming danseuse. Once established at Washington, this fascinating young lady would be at once a living type of our devotion to the heroic Past, and the very princess of the lobby. With a President, appreciative as the bachelorsage of Wheatland, what might not the living DE SOTO do? Like Herodias of old, she might even effect the decapitation of certain office-holders, whose heads, still gracing their shoulders, bitterly offend the perplexed and confounded Democracy!

CANAL CONVENTION IN OHIO.—A State Convention of gentlemen interested in Canals and Transportation assembled on the 6th instant at Columbus. The immediate cause of this movement was the passage in the Ohio House of Representatives of a bill for the sale of the public works. A proposition for such sale has for a number of years been agitated, as a similar one has also been in this State, and its recent adoption by one branch of the Legislature has naturally alarmed the Canal men in Ohio. The Convention signed a memorial setting forth the benefit accruing to the public from the Canals; that their sale to individuals or Corporations would result in their early abandonment, as no private interests could be expected to operate them in case they should prove pecuniarily unprofitable to their owners; and that such abandonment would bring upon the State a heavier tax than is now required to make up for deficiencies in their revenues. The memorial states, as a significant fact, that the Ohio and Pennsylvania Canal has been so managed that all business is driven from it, a result caused by the ownership of two-thirds of its stock being in the hands of individuals interested in railroads, while the State holds one-third only, and it is claimed that a like fate would befall the public works generally should they pass under the control of private parties.

Unusual damage was done to the Ohio Canal by the floods of last year, making the revenue from tolls discouragingly small. The mind of the Legislature was inclined from this cause to favor a sale, and it would seem that the bill for that purpose very nearly became a law before the friends of the Canal were aroused. It is even yet by no means certain that the measure will not pass.

CREATION OF NEW TERRITORIES.—There are before Congress no less than six applications for the creation of new Territories. On the one hand it is sought to create out of the southern half of New-Mexico a new Territorial Government, to be called Arizona. Then there is the project for a new Territory to be called Colona, and to consist of a slice of the western part of Kansas, with portions of Nebraska, Utah and New-Mexico. Again, the eastern portion of Nebraska, lying between the Whilome Territory and the Missouri River, is to be converted into a distinct Territorial Government to be called Dakotah. Further, the Territory of Laramie is to be formed from the southwestern section of Nebraska. Still another Territory, under the name of Nevada, is to be established out of the western half of Utah,—and, lastly, the upper peninsula of Michigan is to be territorialized as Onontagon.

Of all these schemes, the proposed Territories of Arizona and Onontagon present some claim to favorable consideration—the former, because the confirmed accounts of the deposits of precious metals profusely abounding there indicate an early influx of population, and promise that the Territory will be self-sustaining:—the latter because the geographical position of the section of country concerned renders its connection with the State of Michigan very expensive and inconvenient. The proper remedy, however, would be found in annexing the Territory in question to the State of Wisconsin, for reasons which a glance at the map will render evident.

The other territorial property now on hand, however, appear to us to be entirely unnecessary, and therefore mischievously wasteful of the public time. Every additional territorial creation involves additional burdens on the Federal Government which, as everybody knows, is just now in a condition of uncomfortable poverty. The claim set up by the Carson Valley people for the creation of Nevada, was originally founded on a pretended desire for protection from the aggression of BRIGHAM YOUNG and his followers—a reason which cannot be said to exist since the occupation of Utah by the United States troops and the consequent change in the position of affairs in that Territory. The demand for the formation of the Territory of Colona comes from the few settlers around Pike's Peak, in a region which, being already under the government of Kansas, does not appear to call for the proposed alteration; and similar remarks will apply to the claims in behalf of Laramie and Nevada.

"YANKEE BLACKGUARDS."—One of the Liverpool papers, in giving an account of the destruction by fire of the New-York packet-ship Isaac Wright, says that, "the Captain was sober, but the crew were all a set of regular Yankee blackguards." That they were blackguards we have very little doubt, but they could hardly have been Yankee blackguards. There has not been a ship's crew of Americans sailed from this port in a great many years, and as sailors usually desert from our packet-ships as soon as they haul into dock in Liverpool, the probability is that there was not a Yankee on board the Isaac Wright, excepting the officers.

LOLA MONTEZ IN IRELAND.—As all England appears to be shaking in its shoes just now, for fear of being Americanized by Mr. BRIGHT'S speeches, the lectures of LOLA MONTEZ in Ireland, on the demoralizing influences of Democratic institutions, will be likely to find great favor with all classes of Conservatives on the other side of the Atlantic; for everybody that knows anything to the discredit of this country is sure of an attentive hearing in England. WILLIAM PITT, when he was Prime Minister, ordered one of COBBET'S anti-republican tracts to be read, on a certain Sunday morning, from the pulpit of every church in the United Kingdom, and LOLA'S lecture may possibly have a similar honor. COBBET had just returned from this country, as LOLA has, and therefore was considered competent authority upon the practical working of Republican principles.

But, for LOLA to lecture to the Irish on the subject of the United States is altogether a work of supererogation. The million and a half of dollars that are annually sent across the Atlantic by the Bridgets and Patricks who have found a home in this country, to assist in bringing over the relatives they left behind, convey more convincing proofs of the realities of freedom than the wit and eloquence of a thousand Lolas could controvert. But some of LOLA'S facts, though they may shock the sensibilities of the governing classes in Ireland, will be likely to make the lower orders more anxious than ever to get to this land of equal rights. She tells, for instance, of being introduced to a gentleman in New-York, of Teutonic origin, who, though he could neither read nor write, and had "made his pile" by the very lowest and most repugnant employment to which honest labor could devote itself, had nevertheless been elected a Governor of the Almshouse; and if she had remained in New-York a short time longer she might have added that he had been further elevated to the distinguished position of President of a whole Board of Governors. It may prove disgusting enough to the upper classes to learn that a night-scavenger may be so honored in a country where universal suffrage prevails, but the scavenger classes will be likely to view the matter in a very different light.

We shall not be surprised to learn that LOLA has become a greater lionne than she ever was before, when she crosses the channel and commences her lectures on America before a London audience. Anything to the discredit of the United States is now received with eager satisfaction all over Great Britain, and the last number of Blackwood's Magazine explodes a perfect bombshell of American facts under the nose of Mr. BRIGHT, which would be enough to upset that sturdy Radical if he were not firmly planted upon his platform. Among the other startling facts which one of our English cotemporaries brings forward to prove the demoralizing effect of universal suffrage, is the grave statement that when Gen. TAYLOR was elected President, he removed all the Democratic lamp-lighters in New-York. This has been going the rounds of the English press for some weeks. We shall probably hear soon that he turned out all the clerks in the dry-goods stores on Broadway.

Musical.

THE ST. GEORGE'S FESTIVAL.—The grand Festival of the St. George's Society takes place to-day and to-night at the Academy of Music. The programme is one of the richest ever offered in this City. There will be a matinée at 1 o'clock, consisting of "La Serva Padrona" and "Martha" (for the first time in Italian.) Mlle. PICCOLOMINI appears in the first named work; LABORDE, BRIGNOLI, FORMES, &c., in the second. In the evening, the oratorio of the "Creation" will be given with PICCOLOMINI as Eve, and all the other artists in the principal parts. "God save the Queen," the national song of St. George, will be sung chorally during the evening.

FOR NASSAU AND HAVANA.—The British and North American Royal Mail steamship Karnak, Capt. BROUNLESS, which was advertised to sail the day after the arrival of the Africa, left yesterday for the above ports. The Karnak is about 1,200 tons register, a first-class steamer, and possesses excellent accommodations for passengers. There were but a small number who engaged passage upon this first voyage. The Karnak will make monthly trips as above, carrying the mail.

Meeting of the Marine Society.

PRESENTATION OF PLATE—INTERESTING LETTERS OF GENERAL WASHINGTON AND GOVERNOR GEORGE CLINTON.

The annual meeting of the Marine Society of the port of New-York was held last evening at the United States Hotel, Captain CHARLES H. MARSHALL, President of the Society, in the Chair. In addition to the regular business, the occasion was improved for the purpose of making a public presentation to Capt. JAMES COPELAND, the Treasurer of the Society, of a valuable piece of silver plate, as a testimonial for the long and eminent services which that gentleman had rendered to the Society for a period of nineteen years. There was a large attendance, embracing the most distinguished among the merchants and shipmasters of the port, and the proceedings were of more than usual interest.

After the reading and approval of the minutes of the last meeting, the Secretary presented his report, which embraced a statement of the proceedings of the year, and the present condition of the Society. Two valuable documents had been discovered in the archives of the Society, which were deemed of sufficient interest to have laid before them. They consisted of the address of the Society to Governor GEORGE CLINTON, with his reply, and another to Gen. WASHINGTON, with his reply, both bearing date Nov. 27, 1783. They have never before been published.

Eighteen members have been elected during the year; and the Hon. DANIEL F. TIEMANN, PETER H. COPELAND and JAMES H. BRUNDAGE have been elected honorary members. Twelve have died, viz.: Captain Henry Russell, G. B. Cottell, John E. Gillespie, Joseph Hamilton, Samuel Rich, Richard L. Ward, John H. Williams, E. Hawkins, J. A. Whitmore, J. G. W. Trask, A. H. Calhoun and C. D. Ludlow. The number of widows remaining upon the pension roll at the close of the year was 62, receiving from $78 to $90 per annum. Four have died, and four were added to the roll. The funds of the Society amount to $56,450, which is invested in bonds and mortgages in New-York and Brooklyn.

The Treasurer's report shows a balance on hand

Jan 1, 1858, of	$699 79
Received from various sources	5,329 25
Total	$6,029 04
Paid for the expenses of 62 widows	$4,741 38
Do. for other purposes	691 20
Leaving in Treasury	596 46
Total	$6,029 04

The Treasurer stated that he had examined the records for 89 years, and had not discovered the misappropriation of a single cent, nor one delinquency.

Captain MARSHALL, in rising to present the testimonial said:

CAPTAIN COPELAND: The pleasing duty has devolved upon me to present you this piece of plate. The members of the Marine Society, desiring to express their appreciation of your long, valuable and faithful services as Treasurer, ask your acceptance of this testimonial. You have been Treasurer of this Institution nearly a quarter of the time since its foundation in 1770. The tenth year of GEORGE III., about ninety years ago, that charter was granted. The careful manner in which you have conducted the financial affairs of the Society, your devotion to its interests, and your uniform character as a man and a gentleman, (every inch a sailor and a sailor's friend,) are worthy of our highest commendation. I have scarcely ever felt more gratification, and I consider it a privilege to be one of the number on this occasion to present you with this, I trust, lasting token of our regard. This feeling, Sir, is greatly augmented by the fact that I am quite sure that you will appreciate the compliment, emanating as it does from your friends, and being the reward of valuable services devoted to one of the noblest charities in this community. In saying this much, I certainly express the sentiments of every member with whom you have been associated. Long may you enjoy this well-earned reputation. Sir, I could wish that this task, pleasing as it is to me, might have fallen into abler hands,—one more familiar with this duty, and more accustomed to making these addresses would, I am confident, have discharged it more interestingly to you, but to none, I assure you, would the occasion have afforded more sincere personal gratification than myself. It is a subject full of interest, and so agreeable that it cannot fail to warm the heart of every member of this Society.

I will not longer detain you, but will close my remarks with wishing that your future days may be your happiest, and that when the curtain falls upon your earthly career, and these halls, in which we have met so often and so pleasantly, know you no more, this tribute to your character may descend to your children as an evidence of a valuable and well spent life.

Captain COPELAND thanked the Society for their liberal present in a few appropriate remarks, and exhibited his account for all the time he had acted as Treasurer, which was very interesting to the members. The present was a large silver tankard and salver, with appropriate inscriptions.

The following are the addresses, and the letters above referred to from General WASHINGTON and Governor CLINTON:

ADDRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the United States of America:

The humble Address of the Marine Society of the City of New-York, &c.:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY:

While we participate in the lively joy that appears dispersed through all ranks of people, we beg leave to approach your Excellency to offer you our congratulations upon your return to this City, and the happy termination of a war, in which you have sustained a most conspicuous and glorious part.

It were needless to recount, because the world already knows, the singular virtues you have displayed in every stage of a contest, which on the part of America was unparalelled for difficulties and dangers. Nor is it for us to expatiate on that disinterestedness and patriotism, that valor and perseverance, that coolness of action and wisdom in council, which have filled all Europe with your applauses, and so greatly contributed to fix the liberties of this country upon the broad and permanent basis of Independence—a subject so sacred and dignified, falls to the province of History, and happy will that historian be who shall succeed in a task which even the ablest might tremble to undertake.

But it is not for public virtues alone that your Excellency is distinguished; let the numerous officers and soldiers who have shared with you the perils of the field, and are now the companions of your glory, again declare, as they often have declared, how embarrassed they were to determine, whether most to admire or love you; for while, on the one hand, they were astonished at the military talents and virtues of their General, they were drawn to adore you by the irresistible attractions of such politeness and condescension, such humanity and sweetness of disposition, as were never, perhaps, before exhibited by any other commander.

Your Excellency is now returning from your labors, happily and gloriously accomplished, to the shade of private life. How glorious a situation! when you consider that the blessings and applauses of all good men and lovers of their country follow you: and that your services will be ever held in grateful remembrance, by the virtuous citizens of these States and their children's children after them.

Among those who are willing to pay their best tributes of regard to your Excellency, this Corporation would wish to appear—they have, therefore, unanimously elected you one of their members, hoping that this Institution, founded upon the most liberal and humane principles, aptly coinciding with your Excellency's benevolent disposition, will meet with your hearty approbation. By order of the Society,

A. GRIFFITHS, Secretary.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 27, 1783.

GENERAL WASHINGTON'S REPLY.

To the Marine Society of the City of New-York:

GENTLEMEN: I consider myself highly honored by the polite attention shown me in your address and the too partial manner in which you are pleased to express your sense of my public and private conduct; and at the same time I have the pleasure to assure the Society that I am extremely happy in becoming a member of their humane and excellent Institution.

To have conducted as a nation, with so much dignity and propriety, through the unparalleled difficulties and dangers of an arduous contest—to have accomplished our fondest wishes, and to have fixed the liberties of this country upon the broad and permanent basis of independence—will ever reflect the truest glory on the patriots of the present age, and afford the amplest field of description for the future historian.

It would be a mark of the greatest insensibility in me not to partake in the public joy, or not to derive an unusual degree of satisfaction from the approbation of good men and lovers of their country. Believe me, gentlemen, I shall return to private life impressed with the most pleasing sensations—a recollection of the happy scene to which I have lately been a witness, will attend me in my solitary walks, and cheer me in the shade of retirement.

(Signed) G. WASHINGTON.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 29, 1783.

ADDRESS TO GOVERNOR GEORGE CLINTON.

To his Excellency George Clinton, Esq., Governor General and Commander-in-Chief of all the Militia, and Admiral of the Navy of the State of New-York:

The humble address of the Marine Society of the City of New-York, &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: At a time when every heart attached to the liberties of this country expands with joy for the happy restoration of public tranquillity, we should be wanting in duty not to take the earliest opportunity of congratulating your Excellency upon so desirable an event.

The Independence of America, so happily achieved by the wisdom and bravery of her virtuous sons, assisted in their exertions by a most illustrious and generous ally, will ever be a theme we shall dwell on with pleasure; and in reviewing the variety of characters who have contributed their aid, both in council and in the field, to the salvation of their country, we should be really inexcusable were we not to remember, with the deepest affection and gratitude, the important part you have acted on the side of Liberty.

Impressed with the truest sense of your virtues and abilities, the citizens of this State have continued in your hands the reins of Government; and however arduous may be the duties of your office, we hope your labors will be softened by this reflection, that with a free and uncorrupted people it is a just and prevailing opinion that merit like yours only deserves exalted stations.

Much might be said in commendation of your Excellency which we are forced to omit, lest in the abundance of our applause you might mistake for adulation the genuine sentiments of our hearts; but you will permit us for once to declare, that those unacquainted with your Excellency may know, that you are not more distinguished amongst us for your steady zeal and attachment to your country, than for a refined humanity which adds lustre to all your other virtues.

To be "feet to the lame and eyes to the blind, and to make the widow's heart sing for joy," has long been your employment and delight. A disposition so happily moulded to promote some of the first objects of our Institution, could not but call our attention to your Excellency; an Institution which we flatter ourselves has long since met with your approbation, because founded on the principles of Benevolence and Public Utility.

This Corporation, from a most ardent desire to have the honor of your name on the rolls of the Society, and to exhibit this public testimony of their regard for your person, have unanimously voted you one of their members, and most humbly beg your acceptance of these, the certificate and copy of the charter, testimonials of their esteem, not doubting but under the influence of your Excellency's benign administration this Institution will derive new life and vigor, and become as extensively useful as the design of it is generous and laudable.

By order of the Society,

ANTHONY GRIFFITHS, Secretary.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 27, 1783.

GOVERNOR CLINTON'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN: I accept with pleasure the testimony given of your esteem in electing me to be a member of your Society; and, in the persuasion that it may be productive of essential benefits to this commercial State, I shall be happy to serve the true interests and pursue the just objects of so laudable an Institution.

I very cordially reciprocate, gentlemen, your congratulations on the re-establishment of public tranquillity. That this happy event has been so speedily accomplished must be attributed to the favoring hand of Heaven; it was the kindness of Providence smiling on a just cause which inspired such ardor into our troops, and prompted the aid of our illustrious ally.

The small part which I have acted in that great and glorious scene, is amply rewarded by a view of those blessings which are now placed within the reach of my fellow-citizens. The honor they have conferred in electing me to be their Chief Magistrate, and the confidence they have shown by continuing me in that office, call for more than gratitude. I shall endeavor to pay the debt by a vigorous execution of the laws, so as to preserve the peace, liberty and safety for which they have contended.

(Signed.) GEORGE CLINTON.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 29, 1783.

The above are all true copies of the originals now in my possession. JOSEPH TINKHAM, Secretary.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 10, 1859.

The following officers were elected for 1859:

President—CHARLES H. MARSHALL.
First Vice-President—J. M. Ferrier.
Second Vice-President—T. Dunham.
Treasurer—James Copeland.
Secretary—J. Tinkham.
Attorney and Counselor—Daniel Lord.
Standing Committee—Captains J. M. Ferrier, Nathaniel Briggs, Samuel Chandler, William Thomson, James Copeland, Thomas Dunham, A. W. Weldon, E. E. Morgan, Asa H. Swift, A. C. Marshall, A. B. Clark, Joseph Tinkham.

The Society then adjourned, and the whole company sat down to an old-fashioned supper, provided for the occasion by the host of the United States Hotel.

Indian Depredations in Texas—Letter from an Army Officer.

The following copy of a letter to an army officer, gives some facts in regard to one of the recent outrages perpetrated by Indians against the overland California mail stations.

FORT CHADBOURNE, TEXAS, Sunday, Dec. 19, 1858.

SIR: About 10 o'clock Friday morning, 17th inst., sixteen Indians, all well mounted and armed, rushed between my station, at head of Cancho, and the stock, which was being herded by two men, about 500 yards from the station, and stampeded 27 head of mules and horses. The herders fired at them several times, but without effect, and being on foot, they could not pursue them.

The men at the station also rushed out, but were never able to get near enough to fire with any effect. From the direction they took, nearly north, I think they must be from the Indian Reserve, and I will esteem it a favor if you will keep a look-out for them, and also ascertain whether any of the Reserve Indians are out on passes. They have stol

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

A FEMALE FIGHT IN A GERMAN DANCE-HOUSE—ONE WOMAN STABBED.—At an early hour last evening, a quarrel ensued between JOHANNA VENT and CATHERINE RIDDLE, inmates of the German dance-house No. 103 Washington-street, during which Miss RIDDLE was stabbed and seriously injured by Miss VENT. The story, as told by the other inmates, is that a number of the girls were washing, Miss VENT and Miss RIDDLE being of the number; and that Miss RIDDLE used an indigo-bag which did not belong to her. Her making so free with the indigo-bag gave offence to Miss VENT, who is employed as a dancer, while Miss RIDDLE only occupied the place of a servant. Miss VENT, being in anger, seized a pot of coffee and threw it in Miss RIDDLE's face. Miss RIDDLE replied by hurling a smoothing iron at the head of Miss VENT. Miss VENT then seized a knife, such as is commonly used by butchers in killing, but which was there used in carving, and stabbed Miss RIDDLE in the left breast, making a wound about one inch deep and one inch wide. Officer WERTHEIMER, of the First Precinct was then called in, when he arrested Miss VENT, and took her to the Station-house. He then returned to the house, and by direction of Dr. VAN LIER, took the wounded girl to the City Hospital, where the wound was thought to be serious, as it was feared the lungs had been touched. Miss VENT, who committed the deed, is about 25 years of age. Miss RIDDLE is about 21. Both had been in the house about a year.

MORE COUNTERFEITS.—New counterfeit $20 have appeared on the Cobosseecontie Bank, Maryland, and on the Bank of North America of this City. The vignette of those on the Cobosseecontie Bank, is an Indian seated on the ground, with a deer behind him. A portrait of WASHINGTON in the right lower corner. On the left end is a female figure. The bills are not like the genuine. The vignette of those on the Bank of North America, is an Indian girl seated and looking at a city in the distance. There is a steamboat and railroad cars; and an oval picture of locomotive on the right end. They are unlike the genuine.

THE CITY INSPECTOR'S OFFICE—TROUBLE ANTICIPATED.—A communication, of which the following is a copy, was received by Deputy-Superintendent CARPENTER last night:

CITY INSPECTOR'S DEPARTMENT,
NEW-YORK, Jan. 10, 1859.

Daniel Carpenter, Esq., Deputy Superintendent:

DEAR SIR: Having been informed that certain persons contemplate an illegal entry into the public offices of this Department, to-morrow (Tuesday) morning,—said offices being located at No. 1 Centre-street, and at Essex Market, corner of Grand and Essex streets,—I deem it my duty to make application to you to request that such Police force may be detailed at the offices mentioned as shall be requisite to afford protection against such illegal entry, and to preserve the public peace. Very respectfully yours,

GEO. W. MORTON, City Inspector.

The Deputy Superintendent of Police says he will not interfere, except to preserve the public peace, should the services of a Police force be deemed necessary. Mr. MORTON anticipates trouble from the fact that Mayor TIEMANN has nominated his successor.

ATTEMPT AT BURGLARY.—That part of the City lying along South-street, between Maiden-lane and Coentics-slip, is very poorly protected, and affords an inviting field of operations for night burglars. The store of Messrs. TELLER, WEST & Co., at No. 67 South-street, has been three times visited by burglars within the year, the attack in every case being directed against a large rear window, which opens into a small yard adjoining Pine-street. On Saturday or Sunday night, two large panes of glass were broken out, and the inside shutters were considerably damaged by the burglars' implements, in their efforts to pry it open. They failed in the attempt, however, and after setting the oil running from some casks in the yard, they left the premises. The deserted condition of this part of the City during the night, and the little force set to watch it, make it comparatively easy for these operations to be carried on unobserved. There is only one patrolman for the whole district from Pine-street to Coenties-slip. To make up for this deficiency, a private night watchman is employed by the merchan's to watch their stores.

SUPPOSED SUICIDE.—The body of an unknown young woman was found yesterday, in the East River, near the foot of Fiftieth-street. Her dress indicated that she had been an inmate of the Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island. She escaped in some way from the prison, and it is supposed threw herself into the river for the purpose of ending a miserable existence

FIRE IN A BILLIARD SALOON.—A slight fire occurred at 1 o'clock yesterday morning in the billiard saloon attached to the Waverly Restaurant, corner of Broadway and Fourth-street. It was extinguished before much damage had been done.

THE LATE BURGLARY IN FULTON-STREET.—The value of the sewing silks stolen from E. H. ARNOLDS, No. 190 Fulton-street, Friday night, was $3,000. Mr. A. offers $250 reward for the recovery of the goods.

Police Reports.

TWO FEMALE SPIRITUAL MEDIUMS ARRESTED.—Mrs. Harriet Seymour and Mrs. Caroline Hartwell are spiritual mediums, of somewhat extensive Metropolitan reputation. Mrs. Sarah G. Halleck keeps a boarding-house at No. 2 West Twenty-fifth-street, and Mrs. Hartwell was one of her boarders. Mrs. Seymour, for some time past, has been in the habit of visiting Mrs. Hartwell daily. The boarding-house keeper missed some of her napkins. Satisfied that the abrupt departure of the table accompaniments named was owing to physical and not to spiritual agency, she determined to discover, if possible, who were the guilty purloiners. She called in the aid of Officer McDOUGAL, a "shadow," attached to the Detective Police, who at once fastened his optics upon the spiritual medium, and visitor, Mrs. S. Sure enough, Mrs. S. was seen to stealthily grasp with her physical hands the linen napkins of Mrs. Halleck, and stealthily stow them in her pockets. It was plainly a physical manifestation—so the officer alleges—and the "shadow" at once arrested the lady. He also arrested Mrs. Hartwell as an accomplice, and both prisoners were yesterday taken before Justice QUACKENBUSH. The ladies at first affected to treat the matter as a very immaterial affair, but shortly became convinced that it partook of decidedly a material nature, and was "of the earth, earthy." Impressed with the latter conviction, they sent for ex-Judge Edmonds to assist in getting them out of their difficulty. When the Court closed the ex-Judge had failed to appear, however, and the magistrate accordingly required them to give bail in $500 each to answer for the alleged napkin larceny.

UNTRUSTY PILOTS.—Frank Webster resides in Nineteenth-street, near the North River. About 2 o'clock yesterday morning he was strolling through Worth-street. The bitter cold and the late hour determined him to "turn in" at the most convenient lodging house. He asked two men to direct him to a nocturnal resting-place, and they did so. They conducted him to "Cow Bay," near the Five Points, when one of them made a sudden movement with his fist, causing him involuntarily to stretch his length upon the pavement. Having laid him out, they commenced stripping him. They had nearly completed the denuding process, when some Sixth Ward Policemen, attracted by the cries of Webster, hurried to the place, and arrested the untrusty pilots. The prisoners, who gave their names as Edward West and Wm. Miller, were committed to the Tombs.

Coroner's Inquests.

A DRUNKEN FATHER BEATING HIS BOY TO DEATH.—JOHN BAMMAN, an Irish laborer, residing at No. 526 Second-avenue, came home intoxicated a few evenings since, snatched his little boy, six years of age, from the bed where he was sleeping beside his mother, and commenced beating him in a most inhuman manner, without the slightest provocation. The child died on Saturday. Yesterday Coroner JACKMAN held an inquest upon the body. The testimony of the mother was taken showing the beating of the child by the father. She says he knocked the boy down, battered his head against the floor and cuffed and kicked him unmercifully. Drs. O. HANLON and FITCH made a post-mortem examination of the body and gave it as their opinion that death was caused from injuries received at the hands of the father. The Jury rendered a verdict of "death from inflammation of the liver and pleurisy, aggravated by violence at the hands of JOHN BAMMAN." After the inquest the accused was committed to prison in default of $2,000 bail, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

MURDERED HER INFANT.—MARIA KENNEDY, who has been employed as nurse for some time past at No. 396 Bowery, gave birth to an infant on Saturday. She managed to keep the fact of her pregnancy concealed until after the birth of her child. Shortly after parturition the child was discovered to be dead, and suspicion was at once excited. The Coroner was notified to hold an inquest. Coroner SCHIRMER, yesterday, held the inquest. A post-mortem examination showed that death was produced by strangulation. The mother was committed to prison to answer a charge of infanticide.

Board of Aldermen.

The Mayor sent three vetoes to the Board last evening. The first opposed a resolution directing the Comptroller to draw his warrant for $1,164 54 in favor of Messrs. GREEN & HAMMOND, assignees of JAMES REED, for a claim which originated during the time of the difficulties in the Street Department. The two others referred to resolutions with regard to flagging sidewalks in Prince-street. A communication was received from the Mayor nominating Mr. S. C. FOSTER for City Inspector.

Alderman BOOLE moved that the Mayor's nomination be referred to a committee of five.

Alderman ADAMS thought it would be better to refer it to a committee of three. Alderman STEPHENS was in favor of referring the nomination. This was an important subject. He had heard—with all due respect he said it—that the Mayor had made this nomination without consulting a fraction of the members of the Board. He thought the Mayor should have consulted the members of the Board.

Alderman ADAMS did not consider the office of City Inspector such a very important one. He knew nothing, indeed, of the antecedents of the nominee, but they all knew the antecedents of the present incumbent of the office. He thought a committee of three should be appointed. He believed that if a medical man was City Inspector, the health of the City would compare favorably with that of any city.

The Board refused to appoint a Committee of three, (Ayes 10, Nays 6) and agreed that a Committee of five should be appointed. Aldermen Boole, Adams, Genet, Starr and Brady constitute the Committee.

Alderman ADAMS moved that the Committee be instructed to report next Thursday.

Alderman STARR opposed this. He was generally in favor of instructing Committees to report at their earliest convenience. He thought the present City Inspector was considered one of the most energetic that had ever held the office.

Alderman ADAMS thought it would be better that some one else should be appointed in his stead. The motion was lost.

A petition from the American Institute asking a lease of Reservoir square for the purpose of erecting a commodious building there for the offices and annual Fairs of the Institute, was referred to the Committee on Arts and Sciences.

Alderman BRADY offered a resolution in favor of passing an ordinance prohibiting the sprinkling of salt or any other substance in any street of the City for the purpose of melting snow. It was laid on the table.

The Annual Report of the Public Administrator was presented, and it was ordered that it be printed.

A resolution in favor of filling up the office of the Comptroller, at an expense of not more than $5,000, was referred.

The Comptroller's monthly statement of expenditures (for December) was presented, and entered on the minutes.

The President announced the following Standing Committees:

Almshouse Department—Seagrist, Bradley, Darragh.
Arts and Sciences—Stephens, Henry, Starr.
Assessments—Stephens, Genet, Starr.
Cleaning Streets—Tuomey, Seagrist, Brady.

Streets—Boole, Stephens, Lynes.
Taxes—Peck, Seagrist, Darragh.
Wharves, Piers, &c.—Adams, Boole, Smith.
Railroads—Boole, Adams, Genet, Smith, Starr.

The Board adjourned to Thursday.

Loss of the Ship Margaret Tyson.

The following is a list of the officers and crew of the ship Margaret Tyson, which sailed for San Francisco in August last, and has been reported lost, no date, by one of the crew named WILLIAM KENNEDY, who was picked up by the whaling schooner Oread and carried to Fayal.

THOMAS M. MORRISON, Captain, of New-York; S. P. Sturgeon, first officer; Charles Sandford, second officer; James Bruce, carpenter, No. 41 West-street; Lewis Ross, steward, No. 62 Thirteenth-street; Francis Marshall, cook, No. 62 Roosevelt-street; John Grieve, seaman, No. 43 Cherry-street; Henry Gallis, seaman, No. 41 West-street; Edward Hawthorn, seaman, No. 43 Cherry-street; William Milson, seaman, No. 43 Cherry-street; Michael Bean, seaman, No. 105 Cherry-street; William Brown, seaman, No. 43 Cherry-street; Edward Davis, seaman, No. 420 Third-avenue—leaves a family; Robert Linnsford, seaman, Water-street; John McLaughlin, seaman, Brooklyn; Michael Kingsley, seaman, No. 105 Cherry-street, recently married; Charles Hubart, seaman, No. 44 Oak street; Henry Platt, seaman, No. 44 Oak-street; F. Prter, seaman, No. 44 Oak-street; Henry D. Redmond, seaman, Oliver-street; Henry Morse, seaman, Monroe-street; John Brown, seaman, Water-street; Harvey Williams, ordinary seaman, No. 41½ Thomas-street; William Kiler, ordinary seaman, No. 41 West-street; Patrick Kennedy, a boy, shipped for $6 per month. Total; officers and seamen, 25.

The only "KENNEDY" in the above list, it will be noticed, is a boy named PATRICK KENNEDY, whereas the person saved is reported to be a seaman named WILLIAM KENNEDY; and by a strange oversight, the second account mentions no date on which he was picked up, and gives only the longitude of the place—40° S. Until this mysterious personage, with his extraordinary narrative, shall have been brought to New-York, and a full account obtained, there must continue to exist a great amount of uncertainty as to the time when, the place where, and the manner of the loss of this ship.

KANSAS AFFAIRS—DISPATCHES FROM GOV. MEDARY.—The St. Louis Republican, 6th, has the following:

"Lieut. J. P. JONES, Second Regiment United States Artil ery, arrived in this city on the evening of the 1st, from Kansas, with dispatches from Gov. MEDARY to the President. These, it is supposed, have reference to the very serious disturbances which have recommenced in the southern part of Kansas Territory. The notorious MONTGOMERY, with his band, is represented as murdering, robbing and driving off peaceable citizens belonging even to the Free-State Party, having some time since expelled Pro-Slavery settlers in that section. A party under JOHN BROWN invaded Missouri and committed a murder and several robberies. Gov. MEDARY has sent dispatches to Gov. STEWART on the subject, and will take prompt and decisive measures to stop any further disturbance and to punish the offenders.

The London Star gives a report to the effect that Tantia Topee, who is dodging the British troops in India, is in reality no other person than Nena Sahib.

Myla Seaman's Statement.
SWORN TESTIMONY.
SCROON LAKE, Essex County, N. Y. Feb. 6, 1858.

WM. E. HAGAN, Troy N. Y.—Dear Sir: Having used your Hair Coloring or Restorative, and having been much pleased with it, I take pleasure in making the following statement: From the effects of a severe fit of sickness, when about eighteen years of age, my hair commenced turning gray, and so continued to grow until it became perfectly white, being very harsh and coarse. Last Summer I reached my fifty-third year, when I was induced by a friend to purchase two bottles of Heimstreet's Hair Restorative, prepared by you. I commenced using it according to directions and in a few days was surprised to find that my hair, from the roots outward, was turning back to its original color. It so continued to grow until it was as truly brown and glossy as it was before, in my youthful days, and is now fully restored to its original color. MYLA SEAMAN.

Essex County, ss.—Myla Seaman came before me and was duly sworn, and says that the above statement is true, this 9th day of February, 1858.
JOEL F. POTTER, Justice of the Peace.

Remember that this result was produced by HEIMSTREET'S Inimitable, the original and only reliable Hair Restorative.
Price, 50 cents a bottle. Sold everywhere.

A STORY FOR WINTER EVENINGS.

WHILE IT WAS MORNING.

BY VIRGINIA F. TOWNSEND,

Editor of "Arthur's Home Magazine."

One neat 12mo. Price, $1.

SOME OF THE GOOD THINGS SAID OF IT.

From the N. Y. Daily Times

"This is an exceedingly interesting and well written book. We have rarely met a more thoroughly domestic story; it is very much in the style of Miss Austin's novels, pure and sweet in its morals, and kindly and gentle in its lessons."

From Godey's Lady's Book.

"A rare and beautiful story—a story of trial and endurance, and final triumph. The pathos and beauty of its incidents cannot fail to charm the reader, while it has pure and blessed teachings for all lives."

From the Boston Post.

"The authoress is capable of moving the heart-strings by rare touches of nature, which indicate the possession of more than ordinary talent. We can safely recommend a book which breathes throughout so healthy a tone, and exhibits so many beauties of dialogue and description."

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MATHEW CARABY.
A NARRATIVE OF HIS ADVENTURES AMONG FRIENDS AND STRANGERS IN COUNTRY AND IN TOWN. By BENAULY.
From a multitude of favorable notices, by the Press, of this entertaining volume, we select the following:
From the New-York Ladies' Visitor.
A capital story. Old stagers as we are in novel-reading, we confess we did not see through the plot till the author chose to unravel it. The characters are natural and well sustained, and there is a vein of quiet humor running through the book which is very refreshing.
From the New-York Express.
Graphically told and deeply interesting; the more so, as there is no undue exaggeration of sentiment or language.
From the New-York Enquirer.
The characters are well drawn, the touches of nature pointed and salient, and the story exceedingly cleverly told. The interest, like a minion of the law, seizes you by the collar at the outset in such an unmistakable manner that you are satisfied the better way is to go quietly along.
From the New-York Chronicle.
There are powerful and truthful passages, and the colloquial parts are easy and natural—no small praise.
From the Boston Recorder.
The story is well conceived and told with skill, making withal a very pleasant book....There is vigor in the work.
From the Congregationalist.
Whoever commences "Caraby," will be likely to complete it, and may learn lessons of profit.
From the Boston Post.
A readable book, superior to most American novels in interest and character.
From the Boston Journal.
The tone of this book is thoroughly healthful, and its moral, which is not thrust forward too prominently, is therefore good.
From the Saturday Evening Gazette.
Replete with incident; some of it of quite a dramatic character. The author's style is worthy of praise, and the tone of his story is pure.
From the Cincinnati Herald.
It is a sad picture, and will perhaps deepen the reader's sympathy with this poor and oppressed, while it will teach him how selfish and cruel human nature may become when unchecked by the power of Divine grace.
From the Cincinnati Gazette.
If less exciting than many works of fiction, its impressions will, on that account, be the more lasting.
From the Worcester Palladium.
One becomes too much interested in the first chapter to lay it aside till it is finished. May Matthew Caraby find many readers.
MASON BROTHERS, Publishers.
MASON BROTHERS have removed from Nos. 108 and 110 Duane-st. to No. 46 Walker-st., where they will remain until their new store is built.

FROM ALBANY.

Organization of the New Canal Board—Gov. Morgan's First Levee, &c.

ALBANY, Monday, Jan. 10.

Canal Commissioner GARDNER this morning was sworn into office by the Secretary of State.

The new Canal Board met and organized to-day, after which they adjourned to the 18th inst. The calendar will be taken up on the 8th of February.

The addition of the new members of the Board, Lieutenant-Governor CAMPBELL and Canal Commissioner GARDNER, both Republicans, leaves the political division the same as last year—six Democrats to three Republicans.

Governor MORGAN gave his first levée to-night. The attendance was very large.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Monday, Jan. 10.

The Senate met at 7 P. M., and the President announced the following Standing Committees:

On Canals—Messrs. Prosser, Loveland and Mather—Mr. Prosser taking the place of Mr. Stow.

On Charitable and Religious Societies—Messrs. Truman, Smith and Prosser.

Internal Affairs of Towns and Counties—Messrs. J. A. Willard, O. B. Wheeler, and F. Spinola.

Commerce and Navigation—Messrs. Ames, Laflin, and Sloan.

Literature—Messrs. Laflin, Scott, and Burhaus.

Manufactures—Messrs. Purser, O. B. Wheeler and Johnson.

Expiring Laws—Messrs. Patterson, Prosser and Douglas.

The remainder of the Standing Committees are the same as last year.

Mr. STOW was left off all the Committees at his own request, his health being such as will probably detain him from his seat a greater portion of the session.

A special Committee on Aid to the Inebriate Asylum was then appointed. It consists of Messrs. TRUMAN, AMES and SCHELL.

The Senate then—without the transaction of any further business—adjourned.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Monday, Jan. 10.

The Assembly met at 4 o'clock, P. M.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

For increased compensation to the Judges of the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court.

For the amendment of the Emigrant laws so as to relieve Counties.

A remonstrance from the people of Brooklyn against the bill to close the tunne. running through Atlantic-street, asking that the bill be postponed till an opportunity is afforded to be heard against it. This was presented by Mr. MEEKS.

BILLS NOTICED.

By Mr. HALL to provide for the distribution of all unclaimed dividends amongst the School Districts.

By Mr. RUTHERFORD to provide for compensation for Jurors in New-York.

By Mr. DURYEA to provide for the erection of a monument to the memory of the Wallabout martyrs.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

By Mr. REILLY, to authorize the Common Council of New-York to appoint 100 more Commissioners of Deeds.

By Mr. HALL, to assess the lands of the Saratoga and Sackett's Harbor Railroad, now exempted.

By Mr. B. R. JOHNSON, to repeal the law authorizing parties to suits to be witnesses.

By Mr. VAN HORN, for the better protection of fruit growers.

By Mr. BUMP, to amend the apportionment act so as give two members to Broome County.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Mr. OPDYCK, for increasing the number on the Committee of Ways and Means, and Canals, to seven each. Adopted.

By Mr. DURYEA, for the appointment of three Commissioners by the Governor and the Senate to meet a similar committee from New-Jersey, to confer on Quarantine matters. Laid over.

By Mr. RUTHERFORD, a concurrent resolution declaring the present mode of electing the President of the United States anti-Republican, and instructing our Representatives in Congress to endeavor to obtain an amendment of the Constitution so as to provide for the election of President and Vice-President by a direct vote of the people. Laid over.

The Governor's Message was then taken up in Committee of the Whole, Mr. HALL in the Chair. After brief remarks from Mr. SCHOLFIELD, in which he stated that the Republicans were waiting to see whether the Democrats, who were rather severely handled in the message, had any defence to make, progress was reported.

The remainder of the session was consumed in debate on the question of the invitation extended to the clergymen of Albany and its vicinity, to open the sessions with prayer. The Albany clergymen having declined, and the clergymen of Troy, West Troy and Greenbush having accepted, the acceptance of the latter was received by the House, and the Speaker requested to make appointments with the latter. Adjourned.

Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, Monday, Jan. 10.

Nos. 57, 3, 8, 15, 66, 75, 76, 78, 79, 81, 82, 14, 22, 470, 27, 36, 31.

Anniversary Celebration of the Battle of New-Orleans.

FESTIVITIES OF THE TAMMANY SOCIETY—ADDRESS OF MR. I. V. FOWLER, THE GRAND SACHEM—BRILLIANT DEMONSTRATION OF THE DEMOCRACY OF THE OLD WIGWAM.

Regardless of the precedent set by the House of Representatives at Washington, on Friday last, the Tammany Society of this City resolved to commemorate, by an appropriate fête, the memory of the day on which, forty-five years ago, General JACKSON defeated the British at New-Orleans. So far from exhibiting any intention of permitting this venerable jubilee to fall into desuetude, the warriors of Tammany entered upon the arrangements for this commemoration with an earnest alacrity, and spared no efforts to make it equal in éclat that of any previous year. In this, it is but fair to say, they succeeded to admiration. The assemblage was immense, filling the ball-room to a degree involving almost positive discomfort. The Hall itself was magnificently decorated. The walls were draped with flags, over which were hung the crests of the various States; portraits of eminent public men, past and cotemporary; patriotic relics; and numerous mirrors, in which were reflected many a fair face. At 10½ o'clock the Grand Sachem, Mr. ISAAC V. FOWLER, preceded by the Sagamore, bearing on high a gorgeous cap of liberty, and followed by Colonel DELAVAN, ELIJAH F. PURDY, Mr. DUNLAP and the other Sachems, each escorting a guest, entered the ball-room, where the gentlemen and ladies present were drawn up in parallel lines, waiting their entrance. Having marched through these brilliant files, under the lead of Mr. DOUGLAS TAYLOR, the master of the ceremonies, the procession halted in the middle of the room, and the Grand Sachem, disengaging himself from Mr. ISAAC O. BARKER, who had accompanied him as a guest, advanced and said:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: In accordance with a time-honored usage of the Tammany Society or Columbian Order, we are assembled here in this ancient Hall to-night, to commemorate with suitable festivities a day dear to us all—a day which is dear to every lover of his country—a day whose advent is hailed by all those who pay due respect to and bear in kind remembrance the memory of the man and of the event which it recalls. ["Good."] In the name of the Society, I greet you all, and bid you a kindly welcome; and I am certain that the members of the Tammany Society feel honored by the presence of so much of the integrity, the worth and the beauty of the Democracy of the Empire City. [Loud applause.] On the 8th day of January, as time rolls on, our sons and daughters, the young men and maidens, will assemble in this hall and keep in fresh remembrance the recollections of this day, and here, as the years roll by, will be gathered together those who love to hear from the lips of our distinguished orators of the wisdom, the patriotism, and the virtue of those who have gone before us. Let us, then, emulate their virtues and adopt their precepts to govern our action in life, and, in a kindly spirit, with good will and good feeling, let us, by mutual forbearance and concession, endeavor to reconcile differences where any exist, and, in spirit as well as in words, carry out that Union and harmony which I trust will be ever dear to us all. And, ladies, excuse me for detaining you with these few remarks, and, wishing you a happy evening, permit me to propose three cheers for the ladies who are assembled here in honor of old Tammany. [Loud cheering]

Three cheers for the day we celebrate. [Renewed cheering.] Three cheers for JAMES BUCHANAN, President of the United States. [Vehement cheering.]

A VOICE—Three cheers for STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS.

GRAND SACHEM—Three cheers for JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE, Vice-President of the United States. [Great cheering.]

THE SAME VOICE—Three cheers for STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS.

GRAND SACHEM—Three cheers for our honored guests. [Cheers.]

THE VOICE—Three cheers for STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS. [No response.]

Mr. TAYLOR—I now propose three cheers for the Grand Sachem, ISAAC V. FOWLER. [Terrific cheering.]

THE VOICE—Three cheers for DOUGLAS. [None.]

ANOTHER VOICE—No, it won't go—not now, boy.

At the termination of this little episode, the procession withdrew and the dancing was resumed.

At 12½ o'clock the company retired to the supper-room, and entered con amore into a scene of genial jollification, in which the Grand Sachem led off.

Here, in response to a list of regular toasts, addresses were made by the Hon. DANIEL E. SICKLES, Col. MCCUNN, Alderman MCSPEDON, Capt. W. F. LYONS, Mr. BROWN, (of the Journal of Commerce,) Mr. ELIJAH F. PURDY, Mr. PERKINS, Mr. AUGUSTUS SCHELL, CHAS. GRAHAM, Capt. WILEY, Supervisors BELL and O'CONNOR, and many others; and after a great consumption of what was on the table, and a great display of eloquence over it, the Tammany Society wound up its great annual festival.

A great many letters were received from prominent Democrats—among them, from the following: the Hon. John B. Floyd, Secretary of the Treasury; Senator Douglas, Senator Gwin, Senator Mallory, Senator Bates, the Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, the Hon. John A. Dix, the Hon. John Cochrane, the Hon. I.T. Hatch, the Hon. George Taylor, the Hon. B. H. Richardson, Mr. Sidney Webster, Mr. T. F. Meagher, Geo. Bartlett, Thos. G. Young, V. R. Richmond, Charles D. Mead. Legrand Caper, Wm. C. Alexander, Edwin Croswell, R.W. Price, B. F. Hallett, Isaac H. Wright, Samuel Wells and John C. Wright. In fact, responses were received from leading Democrats of every State, alluding either to the simple event of which the fete was meant to be specially commemorative, or, as in the cases of the letters of the Hon. JOHN A. DIX, Senator GWIN and FLETCHER WEBSTER, taking decided ground in favor of "manifest destiny."

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

BROOKLYN COMMON COUNCIL.—A regular meeting of the Brooklyn Common Council was held last evening. The report of the Committee on Ferry and Water Rights, laid on the table on the 6th of December last, in favor of further contesting the claim of New-York to exclusive jurisdiction over the East River, and authorizing the Committee to employ counsel to carry the case recently decided by Judge ROOSEVELT against Brooklyn to the Court of Appeals, was called up under the special order, and adopted without opposition. The annual report of Dr. BOYD, Health Officer, was submitted and ordered printed. From it we learn that there were 6,359 deaths during the year. Males, 3,327; females, 3,072. Adults, 2,154; children, 4,245. Excess of deaths of males over females, 255. Excess of children over adults, 2,091. Alderman SCHOLES, of the Committee on Supplies, &c., submitted a minority report as to the supplying of the city with stationery, &c., in which he makes some serious charges against several prominent persons, the particulars of which will be fully given when the report comes up for consideration two weeks hence. A resolution was offered by Alderman WILSON, and adopted, requesting the Fire Commissioners of the Western and Eastern Districts to reorganize the Fire Department so as to lessen the expenses thereof. The Law Committee made a report appointing some fifty additional Commissioners of Deeds. The Truant Institution Committee reported that their expenses during the last year had exceeded the appropriation by $1,439 11, and asked that an act be prepared to authorize the deficiency to be paid. The report was adopted. A report of the Police Committee was adopted in favor of repairing the Third Precinct Station-house. The report of the Gas Committee was called up, and at the request of Alderman DOUGLASS laid over for one week. A communication from the Fire Commissioners, W. D., in favor of granting discharge certificates to the following persons was received and confirmed: A. F. Albrecht, Wm. S. Searing, R. D. Anderson, Charles C. Halleck, Lewis W. Tout, R. G. Cowenhoven, Charles Canning, James W. Peck, Charles Christmas, James Ryan, B. L. Norman, C. W. Eckerson, J. S. Oxley, Wm. Shannon, Charles McCluney, John T. Finn. The Board transacted a large amount of routine business and adjourned for a week.

A FIRE ALARM BELL FOR SOUTH BROOKLYN.—A number of complaints have been made in regard to an alarm bell in South Brooklyn, setting forth that the only alarm to be depended upon is from the City Hall, and which cannot be heard more than half of the time on account of the distance. The Third Precinct Station-house, upon which there is a bell, has been declared unsafe by a Committee of the Common Council, and it is in such a dangerous condition as to make it necessary to prohibit the ringing of the bell. It is very nearly a year since the bell was rung, and several petitions have been sent to the Common Council praying that the building be put in proper repair, or that a tower be erected, but the Committee on Fire matters have reported adverse upon every occasion. A tower should be erected at once, for no part of the City pays more for Fire Taxes.

SUDDEN DEATH OF AN OLD RESIDENT.—Mr PETER VOORHIES, builder, father of JUDAH B. VOORHIES, Esq. Deputy Surrogate, at a little past 9 o'clock yesterday morning, entered the store of Mr. WILLIAM BARRILL, No. 369 Fulton-street, and, taking a seat near the stove, almost instantly fell back dead. His death was caused by ossification of the heart. The deceased was about 66 years old, and resided the best part of his life in Brooklyn, where he leaves a numerous circle of relatives and friends.

BROOKLYN COURTS.—The Court of Oyer and Terminer was opened yesterday morning by Judge INGRAHAM, but there being only a few jurors present, the Court was adjourned without transacting any business of importance. In the City Court, before Judge CULVER, the case of Albert Barnaby vs. The City Railroad Company, was called on. The action is to recover damages for the loss of a leg by being run over by a car on Court, near Joralemon-street. The plaintiff was non-suited. Calendar for this day, Nos. 27, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24.

Circuit Court Calendar for this day, Nos. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 22, 23, 24, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37.

WHAT IT COSTS.—A sailor, named HANFORD HOVEY, disturbed the meeting in the De Kalb-avenue M. E. Church on Sunday last. He was arrested and fined $25, by Justice VOORHIES, yesterday.

THE INSANE GIRL AT NORFOLK.—The Brooklyn Times says that the insane girl at Norfolk, Va., is from Williamsburg, N. Y., and that her name is GEORGIANA JACKSON.

SUICIDE.—Mr. JOHN LIEBONT, of Greenpoint, committed suicide, on Friday last, by taking a dose of arsenic. Pecuniary troubles, it is alleged, prompted the act.

A NOVELTY.—The Police of the Third Precinct, on Sunday, found a saloon on Hamilton-avenue open, where there was music, dancing and card-playing. The inmates were soon lodged in the jail, and were, yesterday, fined by Justice BLACHLEY.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Littles, the Rochester murderess, is employed at Sing Sing State Prison in trimming hats. She conducts herself with propriety, and obeys the discipline of the Prison. The forger Huntington, in the same institution, is said to be one of the best of the prisoners. He is employed as book-keeper in the cabinet-shop.

The marriage of the Dowager Duchess of Manchester, widow of his late Grace the Duke of Manchester, with Stevenson Arthur Blackwood, Esq., son of Arthur Stevenson Blackwood, Esq., gentleman-usher to her Majesty, was solemnized at St. George's Church, Hanover-square.

M. Ballogh, a Hungarian, asserts that he has managed to square the circle, and he has just sent copies of his work on the subject, which contains numerous diagrams, to the Academy of Science in Vienna and Paris, and to the heads of the Universities of Cambridge and Oxford.

Mr. George H. Moore, Librarian of the Historical Society, has been appointed to and has accepted the position of Professor of Legal History in the University of New-York, of which institution he is an alumnus.

Lieutenant Andrew Jackson, son of John Jackson, of Petersburg, Va., has been appointed assistant tutor in Spanish, at West Point, with a salary of $2,000. He is the first American to whom the post has ever been assigned.

The Rev. Thomas Ragg, of Kirmingham, has been licensed by the Bishop of Rochester to the curacy of Southfleet, near Gravesend. Mr. Ragg is well known as a writer of the evangelical school.

Ferouk Khan has arrived at Teheran. He was received with great pomp, as well as the French military officers engaged by the Shah to organize the Persian Army.

Baron James de Rothschild has made his usual annual donation of 30,000 kilogrammes of bread to be divided among the bureaux de bienfaisance of the twelve arrondissements.

Madame George Sand has gained her libel suit against the schoolmaster, Brouillard, at Auxerre, but as the damages were only 50¢. she has indignantly appealed.

Mlle. Victoire Balfe, daughter of the composer, is engaged at the San Carlo at Naples as prima donna.

A new opera, "Il Diavolo delle Notte," is in preparation at Milan, composed by Bottesini, the contrabassist.

The health of the King of Sweden has become seriously worse.

Charles Lever, the novelist, has been appointed British Vice Consul at Spezzia.

Henry W. Miller is lecturing in North Carolina for the benefit of the Mount Vernon Fund.

MONDAY, Jan. 10—P. M.

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, Jan. 8, 1859, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of Jan. 1:

Increase in Loans	$954,324
Increase in Specie	1,270,193
Increase in Circulation	76,202
Increase in Undrawn Deposits	2,142,431

Including the Clearing-House operations of the week, which show the interexchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	Jan 9, 1858.	Jan. 8, 1859.	Jan 1, 1859
Capital	$64,668 000	$67,734,755	$67,734,755
Loans	98,792,757	128 538,643	127,584,319
Specie	29 176.838	28.399,816	27,129,725
Circulation	6,615,464	7,930.292	7,854,090
Gross Deposits	76,841,362	113,800,882	111,290,742
Exchanged	13,800,078	20,974,260	20,606,551
Undrawn	65,042,284	92,826,622	90,684,191
In Sub-Treasury	2,972,215	4,202,151	5,108,371

The Bank Averages show a larger movement all round. The balances on Deposit increase surprisingly since the New-Year—over four millions in two weeks. The present undrawn line is ahead of the maximum of last Summer, and is wholly unexampled for the month of January. The Specie gain is more important than was looked for, though accounted for, in part, by the fact that the last California arrival averaged but two days on the previous statement. The Discounts go up something less than a million of dollars. The market for Money, under such a showing, presents a steady, if not increasing, ease. The Exchanges for the Boston steamer also look like favoring it. The terms on London are 109¾@109¾, and on Paris, large sales at f.5.18¾@f.5.16¼. There is a liberal disposition among the Banking houses to draw at the quotations.

The Stock Market opens for the week with increased buoyancy. The Africa's advices, besides being better for the English Funds and the London Money Market, advise a further improvement in New-York Central shares, Erie Bonds of all descriptions, and Illinois Central shares. Messrs. BELL also report a good business in State Stocks, and in Panama Sterling Bonds, of '59, which the English brokers are anxious to extend to 1865–1872. This news, added to the firmness with which the dealings of Saturday left off, imparted much animation to the General Market at the early Board, and the business done was extended over nearly all departments of the list. A good many outside orders appeared for moderate sums on the Railway Bond list, in City Bank, and other Dividend shares. The State Stocks were firm, but the principal sales were in Missouris, which advanced to 86¾@87 ex-dividend. When New-York Central was called, the bidding became quite spirited, from 85⅞ up to 85¾, and subsequent sales were made at 85⅞@86, closing 85⅞. A large business was also done in Reading, up to 54⅜, but after the printed list, one or two sellers appeared at 54⅛@⅓, the final bid 54 ℔ cent. There was renewed speculation and an additional rise of ⅜@1 ℔ cent. on the Western Roads, the largest sales being in Galena, which left off 72⅜, and Rock Island closing 60¾@61 ℔ cent. In Illinois Central the rise was 1¼ ℔ cent., sales at 72 ℔ cent.; Michigan Central advanced to 54⅛; Harlem preferred to 37¾@38, the common stock to 14 and the first mortgages to 95 ℔ cent. The rise in the latter within a few days has been from 88⅛, and the managers of the line, since the settlement with the City Corporation, talk of par for both the first and second issue. The latter carry nearly 3½ ℔ cent., on the coupon due Feb. 1. The second consideration of the Erie Report and the advices from London, where the management have undoubtedly several influential friends, advanced the Bonds of 1875 to 47 ℔ cent., and the Convertibles of 1871 to 45½ ℔ cent. The shares closed 16⅝. Some additional orders for Stonington appeared, and the stock brought 66 ℔ cent. Hudson River shares were firm at 35½, and the Mortgages 104 for the first and 76 for the third. New-York State Sixes of 1873 the first sale for some time at the Board, brought 115 ℔ cent. Californias advanced to 86½ ex dividend. Panama was bought on English order at 118; Pacific Mail steady at 93@92¾ ℔ cent. The general market left off strong.

The Cleveland and Columbus half-yearly dividend is 5 ℔ cent., payable Feb. 1. A letter to the City Director, from one of his colleagues, says;

"At our meeting, yesterday, we declared a dividend of 5 ℔ cent., payable on and after Feb. 1. The business of the year stands thus:

Gross earnings		$1,105,333 47
Gross expenses and interests		531,961 04
Nett earnings		$570,372 43
Dividend, July 1, 5 ℔ cent	$237,305
Dividend Jan. 1, 5 ℔ cent	237,305	474,610 00
Surplus		$95,762 43

The business of the year results much better than I expected. The expenses for December are estimated, but probably will not vary $5,000 from the above."

The Bullion Bank people at Clinton Hall have placed their Chairman in the Assembly at Albany, and their Corresponding Secretary in the Clearing-house at New-York. The positions are well taken for attack upon the present Banking system. Mr. ORDYKE has already opened his battery from Capitol Hill, while Mr. LYMAN employs his small arms from the very citadel of the enemy in Wall-street, turning his own magazine of ammunition—in the shape of "statistics" and "returns"—directly upon him. The first fire was directed upon the Country Banks who were beaten down to less than three cents on the dollar. The proof of this achievement, after being published in one of the City papers, was made an addenda to the Clinton Hall pamphlet on the Reform of the Currency for select circulation. The next shot was fired on Saturday against the City Banks associated in the Clearing-house. Their "strength of position" is turned with a single battalion of figures, and reduced just fifty per cent. by the following volley, directed simultaneously through all the evening papers:

Loans and discounts	$127,549,983	an inc. of $29,034,336
Specie	27,129,725	a "dec. of 1,432,921
Net deposits and circul'n	98 538,281	an inc. of 27,014,011
Aver. daily exchanges	20,606,551	an inc. of 7,005,194
		Per cent.
Jan. 2, 1858, per centage of coin to net liability was		.40
Jan. 1, 1859, per centage of coin to net liability was		.27½
Showing that the Specie reserve had been reduced		.12½
That the net liability has been increased		.37½
And a reduced comparative strength of position of		.50
The loans and discounts have been increased		29½
And the Specie decreased		5

Now, all this figuring cannot be wholly aimless. Whether Mr. LYMAN be professedly for or against the Bullion Bank, he certainly contributes to the preliminary purpose of its projectors, which is to impair confidence in the Associated Banks, as Banks of deposit, in order to introduce successfully the new and exclusive Bullion principle. If the service of Mr. L. be not repaid with the Cashiership, it ought to be. To be sure, success, in one sense, will be difficult to attain. The Bullion Bank, or any other new Bank with a good name, may be established. No one opposes the movement on its legal right, for the general Banking Law opens the door to every man or association of men of capital in the State to bank when and where and upon what policy they may elect. But it is another affair to break down twenty other Wall-streeet Banks, with double or quadruple the capital, each one of which is prepared to recognize special deposits of bullion, and to receive and hold them sacred free of the charge of the dealer. The work of destroying the present system, we undertake to say, will be found more difficult as these New Lights progress, whether the effort be directed against the Banks of Circulation in the interior, or the Banks of Deposit in the City. The Legislature and popular confidence of an enlightened and progressive commercial State like New-York, are formidable objects after all. Mr. ORDYKE will have a good time with the country party in the Assembly in demolishing small notes and repealing the usury laws. The latter need some modification, no doubt; but unless the subject be committed to other hands, or placed in other connection than this was upon the free banks, it will utterly fail at the present session. As this gentleman has invented the phrase "debt currency," no surprise need be felt that Mr. LYMAN has given a new interpretation of "strength of position." Both are meaningless, in their application, and both of a piece with the still greater absurdity in banking that "nothing's good but Gold." Let us revert for a moment to the table of figures quoted above.

The common impression is that the business of the New-York bankers actually improved twenty-seven millions during the year 1858, as it had previously recovered twenty-three millions from the extreme depression of the crisis. If their ability to command the accounts of bank dealers at home and abroad, and to employ profitably and safely, even at moderate rates of interest, a good part of these balances—still retaining $9,000,000 in Bullion in excess of the standard of 20 ℔ cent. tacitly adopted at the Clearing-house—be any test of prosperity, there can be no mistake about this improvement. But Mr. LYMAN has ciphered out, and would impose the fallacy upon the public and the Press, that this very strength of movement is the weakness of the banker. In like manner Mr. ORDYKE would have the world believe that it is the weakness of the country also. The theory is that all accounts at bank, other than Bullion, are a fiction, and the sense of this is made about as clear as the proof that the bankers have lost half their strength since last January. At that time they commanded $64,688,000 in Capital and $71,522,000 in Accounts Current and Circulation. Their ability to employ these means safely was $98,549,000. At the close of the year their Capital paid in had increased to $67,734,000, and their Accounts with Depositors and distant Banks in correspondence, and their outstanding Circulation had increased to the value of $98,538,000. This large addition to their banking means, with the partial and healthy revival of trade, together with the accidental wants of the Federal Government, gave them the ability to employ $127,549,000; two-thirds the increase being on Treasury Bills and Bonds, and the remainder in mercantile securities. Deducting the item of Circulation, as amply secured at Albany, the proportion of Bullion in rest last January was 40 ℔ cent. o the balances in account. At the close of the yea the proportion of Bullion, (still 10 ℔ cent. above the standard,) is 30 ℔ cent., with a reserve in the active Discount line of $18,000,000 Treasury Bills to meet the future demand of the Custom-house, whenever the rates of interest upon other securities make it an object to pay them out in place of Gold. And as the exigencies of the Exchanges and the wants of the importer at the Custom-house constitute almost the sole demand upon the bankers, their present available means, exclusive of $109,000,000 other securities, are equal to $45,000,000, as against $28,500,000 last January. And we may as well here add that the proportion of Treasury Bills and Bonds will as assuredly and properly be increased $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 in a few days, as the forthcoming loan is awarded to New-York bidders, and the rates of interest on other securities keep down. The movement will afford no fresh material to the alarmists of the Assembly, and the Clearing House, however the latter may essay to "manage the Press." The practical business public, as well as the bankers, understand the true bearing of the subject, and since the latter have fixed their own standard for the actual Bullion to be held, at all times, in Bank, and the former have not only concurred in it, but appreciate the force of the additional reserve in a security more valuable than Gold itself, the financial machinery will probably move on as easily after the 24th of January as it did after the 10th of August. Of one thing the Bullionists may be assured, to wit, that a further addition of twenty or twenty-five millions will be made to the banking means of this City by mid-Summer, and such part of this addition will no doubt be employed as the state of trade and the course of the Exchanges may seem to justify.
